Trouble Is Brewing in Far East, and We Want None of It

By FLOYD GIBBONS

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Washington, May 16—Hello everybody: That terrible story from Tokio is going to help the world understand Japan much better. We couldn't quite figure out what was the reason for her rampage in Manchuria and it wasn't exactly clear about her purpose in raising that shindig down in Shanghai but now, the assassination of the head of the Japanese government and wholesale attempts on other members of the cabinet and high officials—now this finally clarifies the situation and now we can see what it's all about.

Japan is simply looking for a fight.

The Japanese militarists have been itching for it for the last six months. They stepped down to the corner saloon in Muikden and kicked the chowmein out of a gang of Chinese loafers who were just hanging around doing nothing.

Floyd Gibbons

Then they looked down the street and saw some tough Cantonese mugs blocking the sidewalk in front of the drug store in Shanghai, so they just sailed right in and blew the living shang right off 'em.

Then they looked around and asked the spectators, including Uncle Sam and the League of Nations, if anybody wanted any more of the same and all the peaceful bystanders just shook their heads and moved quietly out of the way and allowed they weren't having none, thank you.

DULL SUMMER AHEAD

Then they hopped back up Manchuria way and made dirty faces across the Amur river and dared any Siberian son of a ko-peek to step out and put up his dukes and you couldn't find the

Glass Hits 93, New Record for May 16

The mercury scooted high 1 day, smashing the record for this day and date, when it bubbled up to the 93 mark at 2:30 p. m.

The mayor got off to a late start on the city's business, because he started the day with an iron hat and then had to make an emergency transformation.

And all Bostonians, who hadn't climbed into their straws, made a rush for the haberdasheries and department stores to get cooler headgear.

In the meantime I, et. was thronged and there was plenty of patronage at the other beaches.

There were 10,000 persons at Revere Beach, and almost as many at City Point and Nantasket.

Everyone who could get off to the golf courses did.

The rest of the populance paid tribute to the day by saying: "Hot, ain't it?"

Today's previous high mark of 85, made in 1926, also represented the high for yesterday, and the high for this season. When the day's mark went tumbling shortly after noon the two other highs went with it.

The record for the month of May is 97, made May 26, 1880.

There are showers on the horizon according to the official forecast, and tomorrow should see a drop in the mercury.

Edsel Ford to Drive Racer at 90-Mile Clip

Indianapolis, May 16 (AP)—Edsel Ford will drive the pace-setting car that will send 40 cars into the 500-mile race here May 30 with a flying start, it was announced today. T. E. (Pop) Myers, general manager of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, will accompany Ford.

Ford has never driven on the track, but must be prepared to lead the drivers at 90 miles an hour.

BARE 'HONOR KILLING' AT SEEKONK

Slaying of Pawtucket Man Is Likened to the Massie Case in Honolulu

An honor slaying—a parallel with the Massie case—was suspected today in the murder of John Rusolveitch, 48, of Pawtucket, whose mutilated body was found yesterday behind a stone wall on a North Seekonk farm.

Rusolveitch, also known as Michelevitz, recently had been sought for questioning with attacks on several girls.

He was released from Massachusetts State prison in 1923 after serving 12½ years of a 15-year sentence for an offense against a young girl.

TO QUESTION GIRL

State Detective Francis W. Clemmey, in charge of the investigation, said he would question the relatives of a 15-year-old American girl of good family who was attacked in her Pawtucket home a month ago.

For the time being the identity of the girl will be withheld, he said. State troopers are aiding him in the investigation.

The report of Dr. Jesse W. Battershall, medical examiner, revealed a terrible disfiguration of the body as well as a fractured skull and a knife wound to the heart.

The victim's skull was fractured in three places by blows of a blunt instrument. Dr. Battersall said, and evidently while he was unconscious from the head wounds and the mutilation, his heart had been pierced by a long-bladed knife, possibly a stiletto, which had been twisted by the hand of the slayer.

DEAD SEVERAL WEEKS

Rusolveitch had been missing from his home, 32 Bellevue ave., Pawtucket since May 5, according to his grandnephew, John Zuromski, 15, a Pawtucket High School student, who identified the body.

Dr. Battershall said he had probably been dead "several weeks."

Zuromski's father, a nephew of the slain man, and his mother were also questioned.

Two boys walking through the North Seekonk woods saw the body propped against the stone wall on the Wheeler school farm. Its position indicated it had been lifted over the wall. A handkerchief with lavender border and an initial "C" was found nearby.

On April 15 Rusolveitch was badly beaten in his own home but did not call a doctor or report the assault.

TUNNEL BILL IS RULED OUT BY WARNER

Announces $3,000,000 Project, Called by Norton a 'Land Grab,' Is Unconstitutional

The $3,000,000 bill for widening East Boston tunnel approaches, branded as a "land grab" by City Councilor Norton, was declared unconstitutional by Atty.-Gen. Warner in an opinion read in the Senate today.

Warner said the bill, which passed both branches of the Legislature and was in the Senate for enactment, would issue the receipts of the $18,000,000 original bond issue to provide for the tunnel digging.

Attempts by Senators Samuel Wragg of Needham and Henry Parkman, Jr., of Boston, to amend the bill will be placed on tomorrow's calendar for debate.

The $3,000,000 bill would provide specifically for the widening of Cross and Merrimac sts., with a traffic circle in Haymarket sq., to provide approaches for the traffic tunnel.

10 P. C. Wage Cut on 'L' Put to Union Vote

A 10 per cent wage reduction—amounting to $1,500,000 a year.

That is the substance of the agreement reached by the trustees of the Boston Elevated and the representatives of the several thousand blue-uniformed men who operate the cars in the great area of metropolitan Boston.

The agreement will be offered to the men, for their acceptance or rejection, at a special meeting of the Boston Street Carmen's Union in Tremont Temple tonight.

The employes are now paid 75 cents an hour for two-men cars and 85 cents an hour for one-man car operation and for bus drivers. It is understood the new wage scale to be proposed to the men for ratification will entail a reduction of about eight cents an hour.

MAHON MAY FAVOR CUT

President William D. Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, who has been one of the active negotiators for the men, will recommend that they accept the new agreement, it is understood.

COLONEL HAS SPENT ALL IN BABY CHASE

Killers May Have Fled to Europe; Hunt for Four Men and Woman

Pictures on Pages 2 and 3

New York, May 16—The kidnaper-slayers of the baby son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh may have fled to Europe.

This conviction grew in certain police circles today as various leads of the past few days failed to produce any tangible results in the search on land and sea for the gang which abducted the child, killed it with merciless inhumanity and then callously extorted $50,000 from the distraught father.

The theory was strongly entertained that the gang—four men and a woman, according to best information—either booked passage on some liner, or used their own vessel, the craft the authorities have been trying to contact, to reach foreign shores.

Ask New Watch for Marked Money

Officially, the police had no hopeful news to reveal. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, in his bulletin issued this morning announced that he had asked the treasurer of the United States to urge "renewed vigilance" in watching for the currency contained in the ransom money paid by Col. Lindbergh through John F. ("Jafsie") Condon, the 72-year-old intermediary of New York City.

Lindbergh Reported To Be "Broke"

This afternoon a conference was called by Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey to co-ordinate police activity. For weeks there has been an undercurrent of dissatisfaction over the manner in which the whole investigation has been conducted. This criticism has culminated in the suggestion of State Senator Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic county, that there be a legislative inquiry.

GANGSTER 'GO-BETWEENS' SOUGHT FOR KIDNAP CLUE

"JAFSIE" TELLS OF MEETING GANG OF 5 ON BOAT

Schwarzkopf, despite the criticism leveled at him and the New Jersey State police, will, according to reports current today, be formally designated at the governor's conference this afternoon as the chief of staff of all the police agencies conducting the search for the slayers.

The Brooklyn Eagle today said it had learned from a source close to the heads of the Lindbergh kidnaping investigation that a week before the body of his baby was found, Col. Lindbergh told an intermediary who visited him that he was "broke."

At the same time, the Eagle said, Col. Lindbergh said the search for his kidnaped child had cost him personally about $200,000 and that he had to borrow from a bank $25,000 of the ransom money paid to the supposed kidnapers by Dr. Condon.

The Eagle said it had learned whatever fortune the flier had was invested in aviation securities in his enthusiasm for the advancement of aviation, and the paper pointed out that these securities have undergone considerable deflation.

Even if the expense of the search for the kidnapers had resulted in Lindbergh being "broke," persons familiar with his affairs pointedout that there was plenty of money in the family to meet far greater demands.

Lindbergh's own fortune was generally believed to be in the neighborhood of $250,000. Old friends of the family said the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow left his daughter and grandchild "very well off."

The Morrow estate itself is reputed to be worth many millions and friends said that of course in such an emergency he could have drawn on this at will.

Report Contact Has Identified One Man

Newark police refused to comment today on the report that John Hughes Curtis, chief of Col. Lindbergh's Norfolk intermediaries, made a secret trip to the Newark police headquarters and identified one of the kidnap gang by a rogues' gallery photograph. Curtis, as a result of his long negotiations with a gang on board a boat plying somewhere between Norfolk and Boston, was able to get a good look at the men whom he suspects as the kidnapers.

State police and Newark detectives were investigating the story of Carrel Schenk, a fish peddler, who told of having seen two men in the vicinity of where the baby was found six hours before the discovery was made. He quoted one of the men as emerging from the thicket and saying to the other: "Everything is still O. K." He said two cars were parked in the vicinity.

On the day the body was found Schenk was driving from Hopewell to Mount Rose with a load of fish. Opposite the exact spot where the body lay (he is sure of that because a white fence ends there) he saw the two cars, and the two men.

Main Part of Hunt Centers at Sea

The main part of the hunt for the kidnaper-slayers seemed to be concentrated at sea today. The middle Atlantic coast, from Norfolk to Cape Cod, was being swept by 75 Coast Guard cutters in search for the five men and a woman believed to be aboard a fishing schooner.

The identity of the schooner, it is reported, is known to Coast Guard officials. This is the craft with which Curtis and Col. Lindbergh sought to communicate with for weeks in a vain effort to get back the baby.

Whether the craft is now beyond the reach of the Coast Guardsmen say on its way to the coast of Europe—was problematical with many detectives supporting the theory that the kidnapers headed for foreign shores the moment they learned the news was out that the baby was found—dead.

At one time in his ransom overtures, the aged university lecturer, famous now as the "Jafsie" in the negotiations, was taken aboard a boat on which he believed the kidnaped infant to be.

Five Men Level Pistols at His Head on Boat

He stood on deck in the center of a ring of five men, each of whom leveled a pistol at his head, Condon told police.

"I'll admit I was a little nervous," Condon, who said he was taken to the ship blindfolded, somewhere off Throggs Neck in the Bronx, continued, after explaining the bandage was removed from his eyes only when he came aboard.

"'Put down your guns. I am not armed, I've been a baseball umpire most of my life and I'm used to settling arguments without weapons,' he related he told the armed kidnapers.

One man talked with a German accent, another with an Italian pronunciation, while a third seemed to be Spanish, Condon declared. The leader was German, about 35, 5 feet 8 inches tall, muscular and blond.

"He had hawklike features, bulging forehead, a pointed chin and a cruel mouth," according to Condon's description. His name was John.

One of Men Later Got the $50,000

This John, Condon related, was the man to whom he later paid the ransom in a New York cemetery. John explained the baby was removed from the ship the day previous, but that h would send "Jafsie" the infant's sleeping suit, which he did. John also said there were one, or perhaps two, women among the band.

From the story unfolded by Condon and Morris Rosner, former government investigator, who also acted as a Lindbergh emissary, police today constructed a theory of the crime, the highlights of which are these:

The kidnaping was planned to extort money from Lindbergh. The child's death, it not perhaps accidental, was decreed when it became too "hot" for the criminals to keep him and evade the gigantic man hunt which sprang up instantly with the hue and cry over the abduction.

While the chiefs of the kidnap ring stayed in a shack somewhere in Sourland mountains, two men and a woman taken into the plot by cars for the stolen infant traveled by automobile to the Lindbergh home. The men climbed a ladder and took the child from its crib in the nursery.

After one or more slew the baby, the kidnapers, believing themselves secure from capture, started their ghastly negotiations to wrest cash from Lindbergh by trading on his longing to recover the baby, a longing they knew could never be fulfilled.

Jafsie Under Guard, Curtis Also Watched

This, in essentials, was the police version.

One point was obscure, and that was the possibility the baby was slain on the night it was captured, either because his cries threatened exposure of the kidnapers or for some strategic reason, and buried immediately in the shallow grave four and a half miles from its Sourland Mountain home near Hopewell, N. J., where the body was found accidentally last week.

Condon's information and that of Curtis were regarded as of prime importance by the police in their search for the kidnapers. Condon himself said he was informed he was chosen negotiator by the group, who convinced him its members were the abductors, because one of their number once was a pupil of his when Condon was a public school principal.

Condon's house in the Bronx was placed under guard today for fear his revelations might bring attempted reprisals from the criminals.

Curtis, a Southern shipbuilder, stayed in Newark overnight, staying at a hotel where two members of the New Jersey state police also slept. He was to return to Newark police headquarters today.

Lindbergh Is Active; Gang Chief Sought

H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police, announced that Lindbergh himself was actively co-operating in the hunt to track down the perpetrators of the appalling crime.

He also reported that Harry Fleischer, Purple gangster, of Detroit, and Abe Wagner, New York gangster, long sought as possible suspects in the case, were still wanted for questioning.

Several new clues gave impetus to the hunt today. One was a checkup on the activities of a Japanese butler, Isamu Yamashita, on March 1, the night of the kidnaping.

Yamashita wounded his employer Mrs. Dora Boice, owner of a riding academy near Hopewell, N. J., killed Larry Dale, a stable hand, and then committed suicide on May 7.

NEW WATCH FOR MARKED BILLS IS SOUGHT

Col. Schwarzkopf Asks U. S. Treasury to Trace Bills Paid for Ransom

Hopewell, N. J., May 16—Police turned again today to the $50,000 ransom bills as a chief hope for success in running down the kidnaper-murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

In his morning news bulletin Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, disclosed he had sent a telegram to the Treasurer of the United States asking renewed vigilance in the country-wide bank search for the notes.

The telegram follows:

"May I respectfully request that you issue another letter to all people who received copies of the lists of currency bills user in the payment of the Lindbergh ransom requesting renewed vigilance in watching for these bills and also that immediate report of discovery of any such bills be made to these headquarters either direct or through you."

The $50,000 ransom was paid by Col. Lindbergh through Dr. John F. Condon, aged educator who negotiated with persons he believed to be the kidnapers through a series of newspaper advertisements signed Jafsie.

Col. Lindbergh kept a list of the serial numbers of every bill and when the baby was not returned he appealed to the Treasurer of the United States for assistance in tracing them. The Treasurer sent a list of the numbers to every national bank in the country.

BORAH SEEKING WARTIME TAX ON INCOMES

Would Have 65 Per Cent Top Rate; Hoover Compromise Relief Plan Under Fire

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Imposition of wartime income tax rates was demanded in the Senate today by Senator Borah (R., Idaho) in order to finance a federal unemployment relief program.

He opened the third day of debate on the Couzens amendment to the revenue bill which would levy wartime income tax rates of 6 per cent on the first $4000 and 12 per cent on income above that figure, with surtax rates in the higher brackets graduating up to 65 per cent.

"It is necessary that we call on those who have means to contribute so we may have means to do some of the things that ought to be done," Borah shouted.

Just previously, Senator Barbour (R.), New Jersey, had demanded legalization and taxation of beer, predicting confidence would return overnight as a result.

"SLOW RELIEF" ATTACKED.

Senator Copeland (D.), New York, suggested the $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 proposed in the Hoover compromise relief plan as loans to states for unemployment would not be "a drop in the bucket."

Borah agreed. He also said the need was increasing, and "we are just six months late. We are arriving by freight."

"How many suicides must there be," asked Borah, "how many insane, how many farms sold under the hammer, how many businesses closed, before the time can arrive when through some process we undertake to stay or to stabilize the purchasing power of the American dollar?"

New York, May 16—National Repeal Week was inaugurated in a nationwide broadcast by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman, and Mrs. Archibald D. Roosevelt, campaign chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Mrs. Sabin

Street meetings will be held throughout the city today and hundreds of women will tour the city in buses, making speeches and asking five-cent contributions, as the start of a campaign to enroll 1,000,000 in the nationwide drive.

In her talk Mrs. Sabin called upon men and women throughout the land to take up cudgels in defense of prohibition modification.

'JAFSIE' TO VIEW CROOK LINEUP

New York, May 16 (AP)—The daily procession of suspected criminals across the brilliantly lighted platform in the police lineup will be attended by Dr. John F. Condon, Bronx mediator, in an effort to identify the person to whom he paid $50,000 for the ransom of the Lindbergh baby.

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney today announced the arrangements, effective at the lineup in police headquarters tomorrow, had been made at the suggestion of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State police.

Lindy Thanks Police in Hunt for Killers

Trenton, N. J., May 16 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh thanked police today for their efforts in the investigation of the kidnaping of his child.

Gov. A. Harry Moore made public the following letter from the colonel:

"Mrs. Dear Gov. Moore:

"I want to express to you my sincere appreciation for the great assistance we have received from the State of New Jersey. It is not possible for me to express adequately our appreciation for the consideration extended by both State and local officials.

"The untiring energy, efficiency and co-operation with which Col. Schwarzkopf (superintendent of State police) has conducted his investigation has been of the most help and satisfaction. I feel that I cannot speak too highly of the New Jersey State police and the officers detailed from other organizations."

Published reports had previously said that Dr. Condon had met five men on a boat.

"Dr. Condon says that he met only one member of the gang," Schwarzkopf said. "This member is presumed to have told him that there were four other men and a woman. Dr. Condon has not given us the names or descriptions of the men beyond the one he contacted. He said that the member he contacted is a Scandinavian."

Suicide of Betty Gow Denied by Officials

Trenton, N. J., May 18 (INS)—A report that Betty Gow, nurse at the Lindbergh home, had committed suicide was vehemently denied by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the state police today.

"There is absolutely no truth in the report," Col. Schwarzkopf said in an official statement issued at the state building.

The report apparently originated last Friday when Betty Gow was dashing from the morgue after viewing the pitiful remains of the baby she once nursed. Later she required medical attention and reports of her death were current in Hopewell and Trenton on Saturday and Sunday.

PIGEON GIVES NEW CLUE

Lowville, N. Y., May 16 (INS)—An injured carrier pigeon was being nursed today by state police awaiting word from headquarters at the Lindbergh estate at Hopewell, N. J., regarding their find.

Its wing broken, the bird came to earth with a tag on its right leg bearing the name of the negro truck driver who found the body of the murdered Lindbergh baby at Mount Rose, N. J.

Authorities were attempting to learn whether it was merely a case of duplicated names.

'Jafsie' Views Rogues' Photos and Will Visit Sing Sing

Eastview, N. Y., May 16 (AP)—Dr. John F. Condon was brought to the Westchester County Jail this afternoon to view Rogues Gallery photographs in an effort to pick out the picture of the Lindbergh kidnaper to whom he paid $50,000.

He looked through photos of criminals, but made no statement.

It was reported Dr. Condon would be taken to Sing Sing late this afternoon to go through the more extensive Bertillon files.

Orphans Pray While Morbid Gape

Hopewell, N. J., May 16 (AP)—As motors purred in a long line and horns honked impatiently at the scene of the finding of the body of Baby Lindbergh, 100 little children of St. Michaels' orphanage knelt in prayer, beseeching sympathy and solace to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Daily these little children had prayed that the baby's life might be spared; that he might be returned to his parents.

It was on land owned by St. Michael's Orphanage that the baby's body was found.

What lies behind that mask of secrecy being worn by investigating authorities in the Lindbergh case?

An aroused public, demanding vengeance for the nation's most appalling crime, has begun to regard that mask with suspicion.

And to wonder if—as Sir Basil Thompson has hinted—it is not merely a mask to disguise the inefficiency and shortcomings of the police.

While there yet remained a chance that official secrecy and deliberate distortion of facts would aid in the same return of Baby Lindbergh, the press and the public were willing to refrain from peeking behind the mask.

Value of Secrecy Has Now Passed

Whatever value official secrecy had, however, ended when the case became a murder. Yet many things which might aid in solution of the crime and apprehension of the criminals, if made public, are still being kept secret.

For instance:

If police would release the original ransom note for photographing and publication in the press, someone might recognize the handwriting.

If police would make known the description of the boat upon which John R. Curtis met the five supposed kidnapers, every craft on the ocean would be enlisted in the search.

If police would make known the nicknames and descriptions of the men with whom the negotiators had dealings, someone somewhere might recognize them.

Certainly the refusal to make such details known is not helping the investigation, and quite conceivably it is hampering it.

Col. Schwarzkopf, the New Jersey State police head, has resumed his game of verbal African dodger with the press. The reporters ask a question and the colonel sees how close he can come to answering it without giving any real answer and any real information.

For instance:

Q.—Has Col. Breckinridge transmitted to you important information which he said he had received from Dr. Condon in New York early this morning? Can you divulge the nature of this lead?

A.—We do not know that Col. Breckinridge made any such statement.

(It will be noted that the point of the question, whether Breckinridge transmitted important information, remains unanswered.)

Here is another example:

Q.—Did Dr. Condon give you the name, nationality and other particulars of the man with whom he was dealing?

A.—Dr. Condon gave us a full statement of all that he knew about the case.

(It will be noted that the point of the question, as regards name, nationality and other particulars remains unanswered.)

Is this because the police do not wish the public to know just how many really good clues—upon which they have made no progress—they possess?

Feared Kidnap Charge, But Not Death Chair!

It is no wonder that such a policy results in such examples of fantastic speculation as the semi-official story regarding the band of five men and a woman supposed to have kidnaped the baby, slain it and then proceeded to collect ransom.

This band is supposed to have kidnaped the baby and returned in the vicinity watching the police search (and that is not hard to believe), and then to have become panicky because the baby was crying and they didn't have any adhesive tape to stop its mouth.

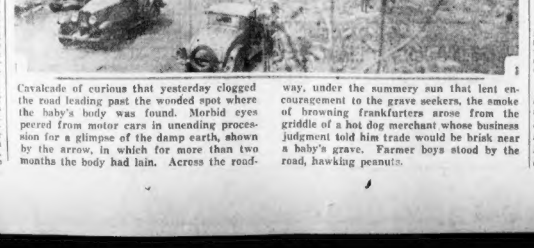
They were afraid the cries of the baby would result in their capture and imprisonment for years, so they murdered the baby and flung its body into underbrush a few feet off a traveled road.

Then, having murdered the baby and left its little body in the open, they lost their fear of arrest and proceeded to enter into certain negotiations. In other words, they were in a panic because they feared 50 years in prison, but the electric chair held no fear for them at all.

And now it appears that Dean Dobson, one of the Norfolk negotiators was negotiating with a different group than that contacted by his fellow negotiator, Curtis!

Is it any wonder that the public has begun to be a mite suspicious as to just how efficient the police investigation, conducted behind the mask of secrecy, has been?

PEANUT SELLERS MAKE MONEY ON TRAGEDY



Cavalcade of curious that yesterday clogged the road leading past the wooded spot where the baby's body was found. Morbid eyes peered from motor cars in unending procession for a glimpse of the damp earth, shown by the arrow, in which for more than two months the body had lain. Across the roadway, under the summery sun that lent encouragement to the grave seekers, the smoke of browning frankfurters arose from the griddle of a hot dog merchant whose business judgment told him trade would be brisk near a baby's grave. Farmer boys stood by the road, hawking peanuts.

CLAIMS MAYOR WAS AGAINST 'TAPPING'

But Curley Disclaims Any Responsibility for Common Crowd Going Thirsty

Because Boston's beer parade was a bit flat yesterday, today its "brewer," Councillor Clement A. Norton of Hyde Park, sought the reason.

The blame for lack of refreshments at yesterday's party floated all over City Hall today seeking a Mt. Olivet on which to land.

First descent was in the office of Mayor Curley.

"A keg of beer? Why, I didn't even know that he intended to have a keg on hand," declared His Honor.

"Yesterday was a good day for a glass of beer, wasn't it? And it wouldn't go half bad today," the mayor remarked as he deftly kicked the "blame" out and started it on its flosting way again.

It was last seen floating out Washington st., headed for Hyde Park.

Councillor Norton, organizer and chief "brewer," is supposed to have promised a keg of cool, foaming beer would be waiting.

Some say there were several thousand marchers. Others estimated only several hundred. Several hundred or several thousand many were seeking the keg of beer.

For a time the beer parade took on the aspect of the old parlor game:

"Beer, beer, who's got the beer?"

Councillor Norton explained its conspicuous absence by explaining:

"The keg of beer was against the wishes of the mayor."

CALLS PEOPLE TO RALLY TO LEADERS

Gen. Araki Reveals Young Militarists Are Seeking a Fascist Dictatorship

Tokio, May 16—An appeal to the people of Japan to support the Government in the crisis brought about by the assassination of Premier Ki Inukai by a group of young militarists seeking a Fascist dictatorship was voiced today by Gen. Eadoa Araki, minister of war.

"The slackening of national morals caused these attacks," said Gen. Araki, referring to the brief reign of terror which included the attempted assassination of half dozen high government officials and the bombing of numerous public buildings.

"Japan's 80,000,000 people," he continued, "must consider adequate measures to prevent a recurrence."

SLAIN IN RESIDENCE

The slaying of the Nipponese premier, assassinated while entertaining guests in his official residence, climaxed long discontent among certain sections of the army and navy over what was termed the governments' weak-kneed policy in foreign affairs.

Propagandists, believed allied with the hand responsible for yesterday's terrorism, have repeatedly urged the establishment of a military dictatorship along Fascist lines, asserting that only strong military leadership can pull the nation out of its economic and social difficulties.

IS OF BAND SURRENDER

Eighteen of the terrorists who cut off the tips of their little fingers to identify themselves as followers of the cause, surrendered immediately after completion of their bloody program.

An eye witness described the attack on the premier as follows:

"Seven of the youths, wearing army cadets' uniforms, forced their way into the premier's residence on Nagata Hill, in the heart of the city, at dusk yesterday, shooting down those police men who attempted to bar their way.

"The premier was smoking a cigarette and talking to a friend. Despite the shooting at the door, he ordered the youths admitted.

"'I'll talk to them,' he said, "and then they will understand.'

"Mrs. Ken Inukai, his daughter-in-law, urged him to flee to safety.

"'Father! Father! Let's run away!' she cried.

"'There's no use running,' the premier replied.

"As the youths burst into the room they fired two shots, the bullets striking the premier in the right temple and the nose."

Long Life Is Over

Capt. Robert Dollar, shipping magnate known all over the world, taken by death early today at the age of 88.

DEATH TAKES CAPT. DOLLAR

San Rafael, Cal., May 16 (INS)—Capt. Robert Dollar, 88-year-old shipping magnate, died early today.

Mrs. Dollar, who has been in faithful attendance since his illness set in on May 2, and Dollar's three sons, Melville, Harold and Stanley, were at his bedside when the end came a few minutes after 1 o'clock this morning.

Capt. Dollar, stricken with a severe cold that was complicated by an old intestinal ailment, had been critically ill for days.

Capt. Dollar, a patriarchal figure with his silver, white hair and beard, successfully undertook unique and colossally difficult enterprises, many of them in the last years of his life.

He was a world-wide mercantile trader, a pioneer lumberman, a ship magnate, a builder of foreign trade, a home-loving father and husband, a progressive business man, a faithful churchman. He was a native of Falkirk, Scotland.

He began his colorful career as a cook in the woods of Ontario after leaving Scotland.

Funeral services will take place Wednesday in the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael, the Rev. John Jefferson Concles officiating. Burial will be in the Dollar vault, Mt. Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

"Dollar Decades" Filled His Life of Achievement

San Francisco, May 16 (AP)—This is how Capt. Robert Dollar, who died today, once outlined by decades what he spent his life doing:

1-10 years—Helped mother.

10-20 years—Bought farm for father.

20-30 years—Rose from chore boy to lumber camp owner.

30-40 years—Extended lumber business.

40-50 years—Found new lumber markets.

50-60 years—Added shipping to lumber business.

60-70 years—Developed shipping and foreign trade.

70-80 years—Developed shipping in Far East.

80-88 years—Established the greatest American passenger and freight fleet.

MALDEN POLICE GET 'BIKE' BACK

Police Com. Artemus B. Sweezey of Malden breathed a sigh of relief today—a great load had been lifted from his mind.

The Malden police motorcycle, stolen 10 days ago, was back in police service today and the thief, Deno Borraeci, 22, of Burnside st., Medford, was sentenced to six months in the house of correction when he was found guilty in Malden court. He also was fined $25 for operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Comr. Sweezey announced his delight over the recovery by granting Special Officer William J. McDermott three extra days' vacation with pay for finding the cycle in the cellar of Borraceri's home.

Boys Find Harmonica But Burn $1500 Barn in Search

Mill River, May 16 (AP)—It cost $1500 today to find a harmonica lost by two boys.

The lads, grandsons of Fred W. Barhoff of Hartford, Ct., lost the harmonica in the hayloft of Barhoff's barn. They began a hunt for the harmonica, using matches for illumination. They found the harmonica, but the barn burned down.

DOUBLE DEATH ON MOUNTAIN

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Tragedy and success mingled in a tale that reached here today of the discovery of both peaks of Mt. McKinley in Alaska by a party which found dead on its descent a member of the Alfalden Carpe band that attempted to reach the icy heights.

Hugh J. Leik, superintendent of the National Park there, sent the word he had found the body of Theodore Knoch and "clear indication Carpe dead in crevice" near the Muldrow glacier.

The main peak is 20,300 feet high, the highest in North America. Addressing Horace Albright, director of National Parks, Leik said:

HUGE VETERANS' GRAFT CHARGED

New York, May 16 (AP)—More than $450,000,000 a year is being paid by the federal government to ex-soldiers who are not suffering from war disabilities, the committee on public health relations of the New York Academy of Medicine charged today in demanding a congressional investigation.

"Recent investigations," the committee said, "reveal a totally unfair distribution of relief benefits, scandalous but strictly legal misuse of appropriations, and almost unbelievable extravagance."

The report called attention to the special counsel of the bureau, who, the report said, "receives a salary of $9000 a year and at the same time draws two-thirds of his pay ($187) monthly as an officer in the late war, because he has bronchitis."

The total number of ex-soldiers receiving compensation for diseases and injuries presumably due to the war jumped from 174,000 in 1922 to 313,000 in 1931.

HUBBARD NAMED TO PARK BOARD

The appointment by President Hoover of Prof. Henry V. Hubbard of Harvard as a member of the National Capitol Park and Planning Commission for a six-year term was announced today.

Prof. Hubbard is the Charles Dyer Norton professor of regional planning at Harvard. His appointment brings the number of Harvard graduates on the commission to four. Charles W. Eliot, 2d, grandson of the late President Eliot; Frederick A. Delano, president of the Harvard Alumni Association, and Frederick L. Olmstead of Brookline are the other Harvard men on the commission.

The commission will execute the extensive plan for the beautification of the District of Columbia.

WHEELER AND WOOLSEY PART

Hollywood, May 16 (AP)—Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey have broken up their screen comedy team and Wheeler has left for New York.

Woolsey, in announcing the severance, said they "really parted friends." Studio gossip said the parting was no love feast.

Columbia Studio officials were reported sending telegrams after Wheeler to remind him he and Woolsey were to have begun a picture at Columbia in a few days.

"I wish it understood," said Woolsey, "that Wheel'r and I never really formed a team at any time. He had his manager and attorney and I had mine.

"At R-K-O Saturday we went over the Columbia contract terms, taking up matters such as certain agreements and conditions, and Wheeler's manager advised him to cancel the thing. He did and started East, ending what professional relationships we may have had."

5 HURT AS AUTO CATCHES FIRE

Worcester, May 16—Five members of the Chase family of this city were injured, one seriously, early today when tight brakes fired the rear end of their auto. It veered from the road and struck a large boulder.

Taken to Worcester City Hospital were:

Garner Scores Hoover Again and Lashes at Moses

Washington, May 16 (INS)—Speaker Garner fired another blast at President Hoover today following the published defense of the President by Sen. Moses.

"The people of this country will not have confidence again so long as Hoover is in the White House," Garner said.

"I challenge anybody to take any 10-day period during the last six months and fail to find contradictory statements from the President," the Speaker continued.

"A man who talks as much as he does is bound to contradict himself, but he ought to have somebody check up on him."

TAKES RAP AT MOSES

Speaking of the Moses statement, Garner said:

"I am highly complimented that the great Moses, author of the rants of the wild Jackasses, should pay his attention to me merely because I made the suggestion that someone was talking too much.

"It showed that what I said must have gotten under somebody's skin.

"The truth is mighty effective."

Turning to the discussion of estimates for additional appropriations sent to Congress—one for $17,000,000 having come today—the speaker said:

"One day President Hoover says to build more buildings to give labor employment and the next day says 'Don't sell any more bonds'."

Senator Moses, in his statement, answered Garner's declaration of Saturday in which he said the country would be better off if President Hoover would maintain silence.

MOSES IN REPLY

"It is difficult to know, upon an outbreak like this whether it is Speaker Garner or Candidate Garner who is doing the talking," he said.

"If Mr. Garner really wants to be of service to his country, I counsel him to forget for a time that he is a candidate for the presidency; to remember that he is Speaker of the House of Representatives, and from that lofty position to make a public declaration that he and his followers in the House would give support and co-operation in the early completion of the remaining part of the reconstruction program of the President."

Sale of Pawtucket Plant Authorized

Providence, May 16 (INS)—Sale of the Pawtucket property of the Manville-Jenckes company for not less than $500,000 was authorized today by Judge Alexander L. Churchill in Superior court.

In normal times the plant employed 2000 textile operatives and was assessed at $1,733,400. The sale was on petition of the receivers, George R. Urquhart and Zenas W. Bliss. The company went into receivership in February.

Lawrence Man Near Death in Geneva N.Y.

Geneva, N. Y., May 16 (AP)—George Morrison, 20, of Lawrence, Mass., was in a critical condition today in the Geneva General Hospital after having been found on a porch presumably injured by an automobile. After giving his name it grew worse and all he could say was "Truck." Then he became unconscious.

He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5000 for hearing Thursday.

"Clean-Up Week" to Open Here May 18

A 10-day period, from May 18 to May 28, has been designated as "clean-up week" by the department of public works, Mayor Curley announced today.

The sanitary division will collect, in addition to litter and refuse, all household rubbish, or other rejected materials. The mayor pointed out that this is an opportunity for householders to put unemployed men to work.

BANK PROBE AT LEOMINSTER

Leominster, May 16—An all-night conference of officials of the Leominster National Bank was continued today, in an attempt to find a solution for the situation which caused the bank to suspend Saturday, it was learned.

Pending an examination by a federal examiner, no statement was forthcoming.

At the request of of Mayor Frederic T. Plant, a statement was issued by Bank Commissioner Guy Mainzinger, the soundness of the Leominster Savings Bank, which suffered a run as a result of the closing of the national bank, which was not affiliated with any others.

Commissioner Guy's statement read:

"The Leominster Savings Bank is in good condition. There is no need of anxiety on the part of depositors. Resources of the Central Savings fund amounting to $6o,000,000 are available."

The savings fund referred to is an association of all the State savings banks.

SPEEDY ACTION BY U. S. NEEDED TO HELP IDLE

By REP. CONNERY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Chairman of the House Labor Committee.

(Written expressly for Universal Service.)

Washington, May 16—The majority of the committee on labor feels that immediate action by Congress is necessary to prevent untold hardship and suffering among the people of the country.

We have reported a bill providing federal co-operation with the states to relieve unemployment—the most pressing issue before the country today.

RELIEF NEED GREAT

It calls for a total federal appropriation of $700,000,000 for loans to states for emergency relief work and for public building construction.

I am heartily in favor of the Robinson bill and other measures to give direct relief. The action of my committee was taken three months ago and pointed the way for this proposal.

I feel that this measure would be the most practical at this time to secure immediate and direct action for relief. There is no question that relief needs are great. The only question can be: What method should Congress pursue?

The provision for construction of public buildings by setting men to work immediately would decrease the unemployment situation and aid in the return of normal conditions of prosperity.

LOANS TO STATES

Some states are forbidden by their constitutions to obligate themselves through bond issues for borrowing needed funds. Others have reached the maximum of their permitted indebtedness.

For those states having no constitutional prohibition against borrowing from the government, the measure provides the state governors may apply to the Secretary of the Treasury for loans to be repaid with no more than five per cent interest and within 10 years.

States not permitted to borrow would receive grants from the Treasury, with the proviso that the governors shall recommend to their Legislatures the proper course by which repayment of the loans may be made.

PETITION

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

We, the undersigned citizens, believing that a Prosperity Loan bond issue of $5,000,000,000 for needed public works is the only economical, sound and certain relief for the unemployment problem, the only sure and quick way to relieve the business depression, and avoid greater suffering throughout the nation in this crisis, do hereby petition the Congress to enact the necessary legislation immediately.

JERSEY CLANS RESENT LINDY INTRUSION

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Famous writer of mystery and dog stories, who through many years' residence in the region of the Lindbergh home knows the territory and its people.

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

This is not a theory, worthy the name, for the solving of the black Lindbergh mystery. I don't know how to solve it. Neither does anyone else. It is incomprehensible, from any normal angle.

But I do know something of the ragtag clan of Jackson Whites; who infest the neighborhood of Sourland Mountain and half a dozen other hinterland regions from South Jersey to the Ramapos. As a young man I hunted through part of their country and tramped their hills and was an accredited guest at some of their cabins. I made a study of them. That is why I write this.

DEARTH OF MORALS

The typical Jackson white has the education of a six-year-old child and the intelligence of a child of 12, and a practical dearth of ethics and morals. He is not merely immoral and unethical. He simply is devoid of such traits.

Hundreds of Jackson whites, everywhere, hold their mountain-and-swampland tenure because the rightful owners of such backwoods land have not found it worthwhile to turn them out. When, by rare chance, part of their domain is wanted by its owner for a game preserve or for any other purpose, the squatters' resentment is likely to be as swift as it is illogically cruel and senseless.

Into a Jackson White Dominion, Col. Lindbergh intruded. From the heart of it he carved a big estate. There he proceeded to map out a flying field and other improvements. Yes, he was within his rights. But so were the buyers of several Greek islands, in my youthful days in the Levant. And more than one of these purchasers lost his life or saw his new mansion go up in flames; because the Levantine brethren of the American Jackson Whites resented his invasion on their squatter territory.

There was no law-redress for such as Jackson Whites as may have been disturbed by Lindbergh or whose illegal privacy he shattered. But, as often among their kind, there was revenge. Mind you, I do not claim that any of them took or even sought this revenge or tried to get rid of the newcomer and his family. But the opportunity was there. The motive was there. And many a Jackson White is barren of what we less primitive folk call "conscience," as well as of common sense.

HOUSE ILL-GUARDED

Some Sourland mountaineer or group of mountaineers could readily have found a way into the Lindbergh house—ill guarded as it seems to have been—and to the interloper's only child. Anyone could have learned, from local gossip or from observation, how dear to his father was the little boy. To destroy this laughing pink and gold child would be a full punishment to its parents for their intrusion. It might even scare them away.

The flying field might as well have spoiled some squatter's plans for a spindly cornfield where the ingredients for his moonshine whisky might be raised. Other innovations may have infringed on the hiding place of a mountain still. Thus, apart from mere primitive revenge or of warning, there may have been practical reasons for ridding the place of the annoying newcomers.

MANY POLICE CLASHES

Among various tribes of Jackson Whites, in my own time, certain things have occurred to lend color to this thought of wild lawlessness. For example.—In the Ramapos, a man swapped his 15-year-old daughter for a cow. The cow was dry; and the other man made such violent trouble that the matter got into the courts. More than one teacher and social worker has been beaten half to death by the mountaineers and driven back to civilization by force and threats. Bunner records the case of a Jackson White who sold his wife to a fellow-hillbilly at so much per pound; and of her assailing buyer and seller with an axe.

There are but a half-handful of instances I could cite, of the Jackson White's primitive disregard for all decent customs and for conscience. Many of them are degenerate and inbred scions of long-ago criminals who hide in the hills to dodge the law; and whose descendants live on their in extra-legal fashion.

Again and again, they have clashed with the state police of New York and New Jersey. More than once, it is said, kidnaping has been one of their modes for revenge or for revenue.

As I told you, I have no theory, worth calling a theory, as to this incredible Lindbergh horror. I do not for a moment suggest the Jackson Whites were the demanders of a ransom. Not one of them could have grasped the idea of such a sum as $50,000. But shrewd blackguards could and did grasp such an idea and could profit richly by the clumsy atrocity; feathering their own foul nests thereby.

Knowing the Jackson Whites as I do, my tentative idea does not seem to me fantastic.

IN NEW YORK BEER PARADE

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, marching in New York's "Beer for Taxation" parade, in which 100,000 paraded. The great throngs of marchers was headed by Mayor James Walker, of New York. It was a colorful appeal for the return of beer. Mrs. Hearst was a member of the mayor's parade committee. (International News Photos.)

PARADE BOOSTS BEER TAX PLAN

New York, May 16 (INS)—The voice of New York is vigorously raised in a demand for the legalization of beer, as emphatically evidenced by the gigantic proportions of Saturday's "beer-for-taxation" parade, Mayor James J. Walker declared today.

"The fact that for every person parading there were 10 or 12 spectators made it the most emphatic expression of the will of the people that New York City has ever seen," he said.

"Police estimate 10,000 persons passed a fixed point every hour. The parade lasted 11 hours, so more than 100,000 participated. More than 2,000,000 witnessed it."

Walker said in many communities the mayors and other officials lacked the courage to get behind the movement, otherwise similar demonstrations would have been held.

Maine Man Held in Attack, Hunt I Here

Bath, Me., May 16 (AP)—Lester ("Ducky") Sproul of Rockland, released from State Prison Saturday, was held in $500 bail today as a witness in an assault on Irvin F. Beach, Brunswick automobile salesman, in which Beach was badly beaten on the head and left in the woods for dead.

Police have asked arrest of Ezra L. Witham, Bowdoinham, released from State Prison in March, as the suspected attacker. It was believed he was in Boston.

Orange, May 16 (AP)—Chief of Police Henry J. Rogers died today of pneumonia, which developed as the result of an accident which he suffered some time ago. He had been chief 13 years and had lived here 45 years.

Four Boys Held for Sending False Police Alarm

The first false citizens' alarm from a downtown police box proved disastrous to four young boys, alleged by police to have sounded the call. All four boys found themselves locked up awaiting the arrival of their parents.

The flasher at the Milk st. station, which starts when a citizens' alarm is sounded, started flashing late yesterday, indicating the alarm was from the box at Commercial and South Market sts.

Sergt. Patrick J. Flanery and Patrolman Frederick Riley sped to the box in time to see the boys running away.

Papal Encyclical to Deal With Crisis

Vatican City, May 16 (AP)—Pope Pius is preparing an encyclical dealing with various aspects of the world crisis, it was learned today. The encyclical will urge the whole world to unite in prayer for divine assistance.

'Prince Go Get Married,' Veteran Advises Wales

London, May 16 (INS)—If England's Prince of Wales never marries it will not be the fault of a certain old soldier in South Africa.

The story of how this soldier told the Prince in parade ground language to hurry up and get married is described by Maj. Tudor G. Davies in his book, "Forty Years in Africa," just published here.

The Prince had been chatting with old soldiers during one of his visits to Africa, Maj. Davies says. One veteran, with many medals on his breast called out,

"Look here, sir; for God's sake, get married!"

The amazing demand startled everybody, but the prince, very amused, asked "why?"

"Well, prince, it's like this," confided the old man. "I have been in a guard of honor for your grandpa and for your dad, and now for yourself. Gimme a chance for your nipper, too."

Maj. Davies says the prince roared with laughter, shook the old man by the hand, and then moved down the review line.

PICKETT ARREST DEMANDED BY TINKHAM

Washington, May 16 (INS)—A formal demand for grand jury investigation to determine whether Peetz Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, should be prosecuted for perjury had been served on Attorney-General Mitchell today by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts.

Tinkham reiterated charges made against Pickett, an associate of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, on the floor of the House.

The Massachusetts member, who instigated the charges against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., said Pickett testified before the Senate lobby committee on May 28, 1930, that no material had been transported from the headquarters building in Washington.

Tinkham, however, asserted he had photostatic copies of freight bills showing that 11 packages were transferred from the board's headquarters on April 9, 1930.

In his letter Tinkham accused Attorney-General Mitchell of having failed to do his duty in the Cannon case.

"It would appear that he may escape the penalties provided by law for his crime because of your delinquency," said Tinkham.

Cannon was indicted by a grand jury on charges of violating the corrupt practices act in failing to make reports of receipts and expenditures in the 1928 political campaign.

Because of Mitchell's delay, Tinkham said, the statute of limitation would bar reindictment if legal contentions raised by Cannon to the indictment were upheld.

SHIPBUILDER IS KILLED IN FALL

New York, May 16 (AP)—William Henry Todd, who began as a rivet heater in Wilmington, Del., a career that carried him to wealth and position as one of the country's most prominent shipbuilders, is dead from a skull fracture. He was 64.

The office of the medical examiner in Brooklyn disclosed today that Todd, ill since early this year, pitched headlong down a 14-foot flight at his Brooklyn home. A physician found him still alive a few minutes later, but the skull was fractured and there were severe scalp lacerations.

A public school education in Wilmington, where he was born Nov. 27, 1867, was his preparation for a life work that carried him to proprietorship of great shipyards in Brooklyn, Portland, Ore., Tacoma, New Orleans and Mobile.

Bay State Students Win Bates Honors

Lewiston, Me., June 16 (AP)—Six men and five women will receive their degrees with honor at the Bates College commencement next month, Dr. W. A. Lawrance, chairman of the faculty committee, announced today.

They include Howard Page of Lowell, Mass., and Muriel Bliss of Attleboro, Mass.

New Premier Repays Colonial Funds

Sydney, N. S. W., May 16 (AP)—Premier Stevens, of New South Wales, successor to the ousted J. T. Lang, today reversed the policy of his predecessor, who had refused to repay to the Commonwealth funds expended to meet defaulted interest on State bonds at New York and London.

Stevens also reopened taxation offices his predecessor had closed.

American Blonde Crowned by Artist

Hollywood, May 16 (INS)—American blondes rule the beauty world, was the opinion today of Fabrien Fabiano, French portrait artist, after a week's "survey" of Hollywood girls.

Hollywood brunettes failed to impress Fabiano, who declared, however, that "these red heads, they are vivacious."

Man Found Dead

Thomas Smith, 89, was found dead in bed yesterday at his home, 382 Salem st., Medford. Medical Examiner Gay said death was due to natural causes.

Many Wild Rumors Bother Probers

Trenton, N. J., May 16 (AP)—The wildest rumors in the Lindbergh kidnap hunt kept police headquarters aggravated last night. One rumor had a servant in the Lindbergh household had committed suicide.

Another involved sinister implications concerning a person not previously mentioned; and a third pointed a finger at a person who does not even exist. These rumors persisted, coming from many parts of the country. All were denied.

Attorneys Lose $1,000,000 in Fees

Cleveland, May 16 (AP)—Attorneys who fought the now abandoned merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation were denied their claims that the Youngstown company should pay their fees in a referee's opinion given today by John T. Scott.

The opinion involves fees estimated by various attorneys at from $600,000 to $1,000,000. Scott held there was no cause of action since the merger was enjoined.

Mary Christie

(During Betty Alden's absence on a vacation, May Christie, famous English authoress, will write on the activities of society folk.)

NEW YORK, May 16—The roof garden of the St. Regis was extremely lively last Wednesday . . .

We trust we contributed to its liveliness . . . for we gave a little dinner-party . . . Sir Hubert and Lady Wilkins, Mr. D. W. Griffith (famous film director), Mrs. Thomas Logan (of the Ritz Tower and Ardsley), and that tall, handsome bachelor, Colonel Larsky, being our guests . . .

May Christie

This gala evening was for the benefit of the Actors' Dinner Club . . . and at midnight, with Robert Emmet Keene acting as master of ceremonies, there was an excellent "floor show" . . .

Like ourselves, a number of people also were giving dinners on the Roof Garden last Wednesday.

I must confess I enjoyed myself thoroughly . . . what female could help but have an interesting time seated between Sir Hubert Wilkins and D. W. Griffith, who made "Way Down East" . . . Intolerance" and "The Birth of a Nation" and many other famous films.

Mussolini to Honor Sir Hubert

SIR HUBERT left Friday on the S. S. Roma for a trip through Italy as the honored guest of Mussolini . . .

From there he plans to go on that thrilling trip to the South Pole, per new submarine!

Mr. Vincent Lopez, informing me he had received a big batch of letters following my little speech over his microphone, asked me if I would once more chat to his enormous radio audience, last Wednesday night . . . I told him I would be happy in do so, and would also like to introduce my dinner-guests, Mr. D. W. Griffith and Sir Hubert Wilkins.

This was done to the soft music of Lopez and his orchestra . . .

The following telegram has reached me from Vincent Lopez:

"Appreciated your going on the air for me last night. The response from our fans this morning has been tremendous. They must have gotten a great thrill. Also wish to thank you for having Sir Hubert Wilkins and D. W. Griffith say a few words. Hoping that we may have the pleasure of having you broadcast with us again I am—Cordially your friend,

"Vincent Lopez."

Mermaids in Rivalry

IN TRULY REGAL SPLENDOR, Park ave. and Broadway gathered Friday night at the Petrushka Club for an after-theater feelie in behalf of the Block-Aid Organization . . .

A Bathing Beauty Contest was one of the features . . . and the judges were dazzled with feminine pulchritude from the Ziegfeld, White and Carroll revues, Fifth ave. manequins . . . Miss Helen Wong, representing China . . . and Miss Bernice Ahl, a Nipponese . . .

Among the entertainers were Helen Morgan . . . Harry Richman . . . Hal LeRoy . . . Ethel Merman . . . Jack Osterman . . . Joe Frisco . . . Benny Rubin . . . Clark Twelvetrees . . . the Mills Brothers . . . and Jeanne Aubert.

Dan Healy and George Kneloff alternated as masters-of-ceremonies . . . and George Kaufhof Russian orchestra played for dancing . . .

The net proceeds will be used in furthering the work of the Emergency Unemployment Relief Committee, headed by Harvey D. Gibson and Wilton Lloyd Smith. Others active in this very worthy cause are Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey . . . George F. Baker . . . Cornelius N. Bliss . . . the Rev. Dr. Harry E. Fosdick . . . E. Roland Harriman . . . Marshall Field . . . and S. Sloan Colt.

MONTE CARLO in the Spring! . . . The ball room floor is replica of the famous one (available of Monte Carlo) was the "setting" for a Roulette Dance at the Lido Country Club Saturday night . . .

The ballroom which overlooks the ocean and has much of the background of the Province of Monaco was a miniature casino on the Riviera . . .

The dancers moved from number to number as the music played, and Larry Siry's orchestra played as usual in perfect rhythm . . .

Among the guests were . . . Mr. and Mrs. George K. Reed . . . Mr. and Mrs. William C. Johnson . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Clark . . . Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Mitchell . . . Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Lauds Praise of Race

MISS RITA SWENSON writes me:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank Miss Maria Di Villarosa, for taking pleasure in my remarks concerning Italians —this is such a quaint trait of Italians, one that makes them so exceedingly charming. I only say, to say that I was delighted in the interest and pleasure she took in my few compliments of her artistic and wonderful race. Maria, it deserves loads more, for its people and the country, itself, are exquisite!

"Some day, in the near future, it shall be my pleasure to make an extended and thorough tour of this glorious country called Italy, and then, my dreams shall be realized.

"Amelie Christie's wonderful descriptions and those of my Italian friends, who sing its praises to the skies, make me all the more eager to go there.

"I am sure your pride in your native country is thoroughly justified, Maria, and I'll ask, although needlessly, that I am a staunch supporter of your race, for they deserve it.

"No other country has such an imposing and glamorous history as Italy, as it dates back to the days of the glorious Roman Empire.

"Once again, I want to thank you, Maria, and I shall feel rewarded you as a friend, if perhaps, not in reality, but at least in spirit."

A BALLAD OF THE CIRCUS

When we went to the circus,
We had seats by the door,
Where the clowns made their entrance
And a coach-and-four.

A shabby old carriage
Trundled in, quite grimly,
Painted up with gold figures
Painted to beat the band.

In it sat a "Princess"
In cheap, tawdry lace,
A gorgeous wig upon her head
And powder on her face.

I could see the clowns waiting
For their cues to come in;
How solemn were their faces
In that strange, hellish din!

Great elephants stood near them,
Trailed nuns and giraffes;
Together they were waiting
For five thousand laughs;

Together they were waiting
For the signal to begin.
One false step, and yet—
A boyish Harlequin

With a grave, sad expression
Even beneath that paint,
Two tiers, or of a poet,
The thin eyes of a saint.

Suddenly the band played
And everyone was off;
But one face haunts me—
A sad, mad Pierrot.

I heard a little cough.
And I saw a tiny smile come
Around his lips and eyes;
But to me there was a tragedy
Beneath that pale disguise.

He pranced and cavorted,
And the children screamed with joy.
But I lost him in the melee—
What was one sad boy

When three rings were crowded
With tableaux and fun,
And the loud band was playing
"Johnny, Get Your Gun!"

The chariots were racing
Around the outer track,
And a marvelous French juggler
Held a pole on his back.

And a girl like an angel
Dropped from a trapeze,
And I looked with wonder
At a young Japanese

Who twirled a bright barrel
Lightly on his toes;
Far down the arena,
Loud laughter arose,

And my young elown was making
The people expire,
As he danced like a fool
On a long, thin wire.

They roared at his antics,
And clapped for a while,
And then grew weary
Of his smooth, fixed smile

And turned to the others
Who romped in the ring
And I lost my taste
For the whole silly thing.

I was glad it was over—
The false, foolish show.
But one face haunts me—
A sad, mad Pierrot.

A boy with the soul
Of a poet and saint,
Smiling in public
Beneath his cheap paint.

Yet looking on grave
When no one could see
The ache in his eyes
But a fool like me.

Over St. Clair's. Hancock 3463.

A Perfect Lipstick

is the Christy lipstick, now featured by Filene's. Perfect—because there's one created just for YOU, no matter what your complexion type. The Christy Make-Up Tester (sketched) will tell you the exact shade of rouge and lipstick for you, whether it's purplish-red or extreme orange-red. Ask to see the new No. 3 Christy Lipstick—blended to wear with the popular Nicotenine nude and blues. You have only to try the Christy Lipstick to note how it brightens the lips—how it calls forth the crystal lights that lie in lovely eyes. All three—Christy Lipstick rouge and powder—are $1.00 each. You'll find the Christy Make-Up Tester on the street floor in Filene's Toiletries Shop.

The Bride's Accessories Must Be

fashion-right! Anne, when you told me Jean was so anxious to have her accessories for her trousseau the last word, I began to shop around knowing how busy she is, and so, I went to Filene's—and-tered about on the street floor and made a list of some outstanding fashion highlights in accessories! For instance, there's the new "Whipcord" leather bag with a stunning Marcasite ornament to crown Milady's Traveling costume. It has that satisfying fineness of making that marks the aristocrats among bags. Comes in blue, brown and black—priced at only $7.50! They also have on display the most delirious lace-trimmed handkerchiefs your Priscilla has ever seen for $1! And never have any stockings been such a temptation as their "Queen's Lace" Hosiery—it's the first choice of so many smart brides—delicate as a cobweb—this lace stocking is thrillingly new—adorably flattering and one step ahead of fashion—and it's only $1.95. In white they'd be simply ravishing with a wedding gown—and the five other shades are the most exquisite stocking shades you've ever seen! Tell Jean to see the perfectly stunning white and eggshell Doeskin gloves. Gloves—soft, pliable durable—in two most popular lengths for summer 1932; 4-button length gloves are $3.50—8-button length, $5. Both pique and HAND sewn. Tell Jean not to delay her visit to Filene's—she'll find all these accessories I've told you about on the street floor.

For Those Who Care

Did you ever stop and think that whether your hair is thick or thin, fine or coarse, there is an individual type of permanent waving that will suit your best. So it's nice to know of a shop like the Hollywood Beauty Shoppe, where experts advise you about the wave best suited to you—without charge. Mr. Trocoli himself supervises every wave—gives you a wide wave if your features demand it—soft and curly, if that's your type. Now you may have a $15 permanent for $8—and this includes finger wave and shampoo. Mr. Trocelli will also clip and mould your hair until he has created a style just for you! This month you may have a "First Rob" for only 75c—it is regularly priced $1.50. The Hollywood Beauty Shoppe is at 110 Tremont Street, Room 327. Tel. Devonshire 7053.

PAINFUL FEET
Leg, Knee and Back Pains

There is a new process of restoring sore, painful, abused feet to normal. Old methods such as corrective shoes, steel arch supports, braces, etc., do not take into consideration that no two feet are exactly alike, not even the right and left of the same person.

Orthomee sensitive machines show the slightest variation of each foot. No guesswork. Sure, positive relief. No charge for first visit. Registered foot specialist in charge. ORTHOMEC SYSTEM, 140 Boylston St., opposite Common. LIB. 1399.

A Common Fault

In many otherwise attractive women is their neglect of a common defect — superfluous hair ... That hair is a decided growth of hair around the corners of our lips and eyebrows. It is not ordinary plucking. It is so simple to be rid of it forever, too. Just a visit to our electric needle specialist. Miss Elizabeth Sparkes, will convince you of this. Her scientific method of removing hair is permanent and painless. She uses nothing but Hudnut needles, which remove each hair by the root so that it can never return. She has a 40 multipl. machine for removing hair from the arms and legs. Bathing suits and short sleeved frocks necessitate having unsightly hair on the arms and legs removed. Consultation free of charge. Miss Elisabeth Sparkes, 120 Tremont street, Room 234. Telephone Hancock 7362.

The Cool Allure of Cellophane has caught the fancy of leading shoe designers, for smart summer footwear. Specially processed to assure quality appearance and cool comfort, Cellophane in shoes is quite the gayest thing in new footwear. The Queen Quality Boot Shop is featuring Cellophane shoes in the newest sandal effects, illustrated and a natural shade that may be worn with any costume. The "Pearl" (model sketched) is typical of the cleverly styled Cellophane Shoes you'll find here, and is priced at only $8.90! The Queen Quality Boot Shop is at 158 Tremont street.

The Most Exciting Discovery in the World of beauty! The new Zotos Permanent! In the Salon of L. Max, living models demonstrate the beauty of this marvelous new Zotos process.

Think of it, a beautiful permanent wave, without a machine, without electricity, and in far less time than you ever thought possible! Just relax and be made beautiful the Zotos way. No sitting under a machine—no metal heaters to pull the hair—Zotos is automatic—your hair is steamed gently—the result a deep, natural and lustrous permanent wave. And lustrous permanent wave. And luxurious it is—when the hair is bleached, dyed or so fine that the average permanent is unsatisfactory. By the way, the Zotos wave costs no more than any good permanent. L. Max has the entire third floor at 184 Boylston street. Tel. Dev. 7618.

The Importance Of Accessories

cannot be stressed too much. An otherwise attractive ensemble may be easily ruined by the wrong pocketbook, hosiery that doesn't match, or even a scarf with conflicting colors. If your own sense of color contrasts is none too dependable, it is best to keep to one color, for an ensemble that matches to perfection is ever smart. If you have a flair for color, it's exciting to change an outfit, using your favorite hues of the rainbow to get just the desired effect. Gloves, pocketbook and hosiery should always match, or complement each other. The new fabric pocketbooks, in all summery pastel shades, are just the thing to carry with the light wash frocks and crepes we'll be wearing this summer. Look for more Fashion news of interest next Monday. Anne Davisdaily.

HOOVER ASKS $17,306,000 FOR VETS

Washington, May 16 (AP)—President Hoover today requested supplemental appropriations totaling $17,306,760 to be made available immediately for army and navy pensions and for maintenance of homes for disabled servicemen.

With $3,000,000 requested Saturday, the chief executive has asked for more than $20,000,000 to be carried in the second deficiency appropriation bill yet to be formulated by the House appropriations committee.

The funds requested today include $12,750,000 for pensions, $4,233,000 for military and naval insurance, $24,480 for state and territorial homes for disabled soldiers the current fiscal year and $38,230 for the 1932 fiscal year.

In another supplemental estimate he requested $200,000 for deportation of destitute aliens.

690 RESCUED ON FLAMING SHIP

Aboard H. M. S. Mahsud, Gulf of Aden, May 16 (INS)—A total of 690 persons from the abandoned French vessel Georges Philippar have been rescued. The vessel caught afire and was destroyed.

The Mahsud is proceeding to Aden with 149 survivors. Other rescue ships picked up 541 passengers and members of the crew.

The captain of the liner was also rescued when the ship was abandoned off the coast of Somaliland.

The wireless from the Mahsud, the first dispatch received from the scene of the disaster, indicated there may have been virtually no loss of life. Messages from Paris placed the total complement of persons aboard the ill-fated liner at approximately 600.

HUNT TO RADIO TOKIO TRAGEDY

New York, May 16 (INS)—Frazier Hunt, International News Service correspondent, now in Tokio, will broadcast an up-to-the-minute summary of conditions in troubled Japan to the United States over an international hookup, Saturday evening, May 21, at 7:45 Eastern daylight saving time. He will speak for 15 minutes.

Mr. Hunt's talk will be made from Station JOAK, Tokio, and brought to San Francisco via short wave, whence it will be carried over the WEAF-Red Network and supplementary stations of the National Broadcasting Co. throughout the country. It will be rebroadcast at Schenectady by short wave to Australia and South America, and at Oakland to the Far East.

Mr. Hunt left the United States two months ago to survey conditions in the Orient for International News Service.

They decline to talk, other than to say that their negotiations have been marked by amity and a good spirit of co-operation. They have agreed that the terms shall not be made public until after they have been submitted to the employes affected.

The Elevated, due to decreased riding, is faced by a deficit of $2,000,000 this year and the prospect of an assessment of that amount upon the cities and towns served by the Elevated. These communities are already crippled by high taxes, especially upon real estate.

A wage reduction of 15 per cent and then of 12½ per cent was proposed to the men by the Elevated trustees. The men offered as a counter-proposal that the existing wage schedule be maintained in force another year, beginning July 1.

It is understood the 10 per cent reduction was finally agreed upon by the representatives of both sides after they had considered the wage increases granted the men the past few years, the decreased cost of living and the desire to preserve the co-operation which has existed among the Elevated, the men and the public under the system of public control.

There has been some indication that if the $1,300,000 wage reduction is agreed upon, the remaining $900,000 of the threatened $2,000,000 deficit can be eliminated by new efficiences of operation.

Soap Mouthwash Ordered for Women

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16 (INS)—The old-fashioned remedy of a soap mouth wash was prescribed by City Judge George L. Hager today for Mrs. Augusta Heisler, 23, whom he found guilty of using profane language to policemen.

He appointed her mother-in-law the court's agent in administering the sentence.

Supposed Kidnaper Rescued From Mob

Chicago, May 16 (INS)—Rescued from a mob of 200 persons who saw his alleged attempt to kidnap eight-year-old Dorothy Christoff, Louis Cohen, 44, was held under heavy guard in the Maxwell st. police station today.

Cohen, a furniture company official, is the father of six children.

GIBBONS WARNS U. S. 'BEWARE, JAPANESE ARE ITCHING FOR A WAR!'

By FLOYD GIBBONS

makings of a fight from Whiskerville to Cutcherhedoff.

Well, sir, it looked as though the field was sort of cleaned up; all Asia was cowed and shivering and speaking mighty softly as it stepped in and out between the fresh graves. Mr. Stimson was over in Europe and you couldn't get a yip out of the League of Nations even if you bombed Geneva—so there was every prospect of a terrible peaceful summer without a shot fired.

And then a thought struck that young Japanese military party. It just turned around and beat it right back home to Japan and turned loose on the family. If a feller can't get a fight down the street when he's looking for it, well, there's nothing to do but go home and sock grandpa on the button and tip over the baby's high chair and slap mother in the face.

That's what happened yesterday in Japan.

I first heard the news when I stepped out of a flivver in Annapolis where I was going to have a yarn with our future Steve Decaturs. Admiral Hart, the superintendent, handed me a wire from the chief of the Universal Service in New York and it read:

"All Hell popping in Tokye. Telegraph what you know about it."

STORY 8 WEEKS OLD

I knew plenty. I didn't telegraph. I telephoned and told the chief that I had written the story six weeks ago. He thought I was kidding, but I told him to look back in the files six weeks to March 28 and he would see a front page story which I radioed from midpacific several days after leaving Japan.

It was a warning of the Tokio revolt which happened yesterday. I don't like to pull these "I told you so's" but you'll find it in that story in black and white.

There was no secret about yesterday's outbreak of Fascist terror and revolt in Tokio. Americans as well as Japanese have been fearing it any day for the last two months.

Six weeks ago American residents in Tokio told me they were getting ready to send their women and children to Manila because they believed the military would rise against the government in an effort to establish a military dictatorship under the emperor.

LOOKING FOR VICTIMS

Their greatest fear then and it is even greater now in view of yesterday's horrifying events, is that this revolt will spread into a general anti-foreign massacre.

I hate to write that but it is certainly in the cards if this thing spreads. The Japanese militarists are fighting mad and looking for victims and if they run out of government heads and ministers and financiers and high officials, they will next start on the foreigners and among the foreigners in Japan at present, the American is just one point above the bubonic plague in popularity.

What are they fighting about? Well sir, it was the same question I asked in Japan. It looked to me as though the military party had everything its own way. You know, of course, that it has more freedom of action than any other war department in any other nation in the world, and is even more strongly entrenched than the Prussian militarists in the old empire of Kaiser Bill.

WANT DICTATOR

The ministers of war and of navy do not report to the head of the civil government but direct to the emperor and to the emperor only. And if the other members of the cabinet, including the prime minister and the whole Japanese congress to boot—if they won't play ball with the army and navy—well it's just too bad and the army and the navy arrange a new cabinet that will.

But the young militarists in Japan are still not satisfied. They have the yen for a military dictator and to heck with all this voting business and political parties punching the bag about the same old issues that don't mean anything at all in their young uniformed lives. They are fighting men with the old Samurai contempt for all other classes of the population.

The warriors of old Japan were her nobility and the idea still persists even in these so-called modern times. The officers of the army or the navy believe that the sidewalks are for him, and all traders, financiers, manufacturers, shopkeepers, artisans, students, workers—they belong in the street.

There's sure going to be an awful mess in Japan before this idea is eradicated. It was based on the old two-sword men before the days of modern armies of hundreds of thousands in which workers and all classes of the population must take their places in the ranks.

MUST CLEAR OWN WAY

The young militarists operate by a fascination. There is nothing wrong with that, as a means to an end in Japan, if you happen to be a fighting Samurai. It is supposed to be your noble duty to cut your way through anything or anybody that stands between you and your sworn duty or believed mission in life.

And they can take it as well as give it. That's what they proved with yesterday's assassination, which is only one of three within the last 18 months.

That's why Japan today presents unfortunately for her reputation before the world—that's why she presents the picture of an animal running wild, attacking everything in sight, and when there are no further victims in view, the animal turns around and bites itself.

That's the kind of a critter to steer clear of but to keep your eyes on all the time and be ready to defend yourself at any time because you can never tell who's next.

HAVE OWN K. K. K.

These young Jap militarists are backed up by super-patriotic societies — blood-brothers, they call themselves—and all co-ordinated in the secret organization called the Black Dragon. It is a sort of a super-Japanese K. K. K., and it is superior to the police, who never interfere with them. Liberal leaders are assassinated and their homes bombed by members of the Black Dragon, without police investigation or interference. It is done in the name of patriotism and love and worship of the emperor.

Yesterday's events in Japan mean that a new and fearful element is at large on this busy old golf-ball of a world of ours. Japan under military dictatorship will constitute a new menace to the peace of the world.

More than ever for America, it is our duty to keep our hands off. Japan's government and her internal affairs, and even her international affairs with nations other than ourselves are no business of ours.

WAR BREWING

War is brewing in the Far East and we want none of it. Unfortunately we are not ready at present to adequately defend ourselves if this irresponsible menace is suddenly directed against us.

Our first and immediate step should be to remove politics from Hawaii, which is now under the political domination of 140,000 Japanese.

The islands should be administered as an American fort, the keystone of our defense in the Pacific. They should be administered by a military commission

'MOTHER' SHIP CRASH SAGS RUM PRICE

Speed boats and other contact craft raced from Provincetown, Falmouth, Newport and other harbors for a point 20 miles off Block Island early today, after reports that two "mother" rum ships had been in collision in thick fog and $200,000 worth of liquor was being offered for sale there at bargain prices.

Attempting to smash the hold contact boats was a group of coast guard craft hurriedly sent to the scene by the New London Coast Guard Base officials.

Meanwhile, the captain and the crew of the rum supply ship Accuracy, a British motor vessel, were engaged in a desperate attempt to keep their craft afloat despite a damaged bow and a heavy load of liquor.

The Apohaqui, also a British motor vessel, which rammed the Accuracy while the two vessels were attempting to elude a coast guard destroyer in the vicinity, could not relieve the damaged craft of its heavy and costly cargo, for she, too, was heavily loaded. The Accuracy faces seizure if it enters a United States port.

News of the Accuracy's strange dilemma reached the mainland yesterday when a speedboat which was attempting to make contact with the two supply ships early yesterday and witnessed the collision was sent to the mainland to spread the skipper's desperate appeal for customers.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the The Boston Herald columns.

BIG AD DRIVE IS LAUNCHED BY N. E. COUNCIL

A nationwide campaign by the New England Council, to advertise New England as a recreational area is now under way in seven magazines of national circulation and will soon start in newspapers in a dozen leading cities outside New England.

The campaign is endorsed by six New England governors and supported by business interests. It is being hailed as an important contribution by the Council to the stabilization of New England's income.

Thousands of inquiries from this advertising have already been received. The advertisements feature New England climate, food, hospitality and scenery and recreational facilities.

A merchandising campaign to stimulate business concerns to tie in with the advertising of the council program is also under way.

New England's income from recreational sources in a normal year is $500,000,000. The value of the recreational property is about $550,000,000 and taxes of $15,000,000 are paid annually on it.

The object of the council's campaign is to maintain this income, which is one of the strongest stabilizing elements in the New England situation.

JENNEY CONCERT BAND EVERY SUNDAY EVENING WEEI 9 to 9

"If I am to advise you I must have the facts," says the lawyer to the client. The same desire for facts has taught lawyers to judge their own personal affairs just as impartially.

In the purchase of a home and its equipment . . . a new motor car and its upkeep . . . here again lawyers depend upon facts. And experience has proven to them indisputably that for all-round performance, minimum of repair bills and genuine satisfaction . . . it pays to buy the best of fuel . . . a superior gasoline.

Throughout Eastern New England thousands of discriminating motorists recognize in Jenney Aero the finest of super fuels. They know that its instant starting, greater power and mileage are absolute facts. But do you know it? Try today a tankful of Jenney Aero and judge for yourself.

WALL ST. ONCE AGAIN BLAMES CAPITAL

By B. C. FORBES

WALL STREET, upset once again, blames Washington once again.

Until Congress settles various vital tax, banking, relief and other problems of tranquillity must not be expected.

High European politics are occasioning concern in the highest banking circles here. Untoward events on the continent are not only feared but have already been largely discounted by the international financial world. In addition to Germany, the "Danubian States" are expected to cause unsettlement.

Abandonment of Gold Standard Feared

The domestic political, financial and economic compass can be briefly boxed thus:

Political uncertainty is causing fresh nervousness.

The constant swelling of bank credit facilities is counted upon to improve investment and commodity prices, although very gradually.

Fear that America may abandon the gold standard has spread in many directions at home as well as abroad, with the result that a considerable amount of gold is being hoarded.

Industry and business, by and large, do not yet reflect convincing improvement.

The general price level has declined further.

America Country of Fear

Thus it will be seen that the picture is not pleasant or inspiring at the moment.

As a matter of fact, there has been a recrudescence of fear.

Financiers, capitalists and financial institutions fear Congress.

Business men fear still poorer business.

Workers fear idleness.

Recovery "Sure as Sunrise"

Happily, such a state of mind invariably prevails towards the tail-end of depression. History proves that recovery has regularly set in when hopelessness became most rampant.

That history will repeat itself cannot be doubted, but no mortal can tell how far unreasoning pessimism may be carried before the sure-as-sunrise recovery actually begins.

Patriotism, Not Politics, Needed

European nations had the sagacity to form "coalition" or "national" governments when confronted with supreme difficulties.

Most assuredly there is need today for patriotic co-operation rather than partisanship at the seat of our national government. Occasionally there have been indications that Washington politicians would put patriotism above party politics. But apparently many of our law-makers, both in the House and the Senate, do not realize just how urgent and imperative the need for broad-gauge statesmanship has become.

Banker Can't See Crisis

One extremely influential banker replied last week, when I tried to induce him to assert constructive leadership, "If we were faced with a crisis, what you suggest might be all right."

Faced with a crisis! Ask the seven or eight millions of unemployed whether they are faced with a crisis. Ask other millions of breadwinners whose work and wages are shrinking alarmingly whether they feel they are faced with a crisis. Ask nine out of ten business concerns whether they fear they are facing a crisis.

A crisis! In my humble opinion, America at this moment is in the throes of a more painful crisis than it experienced at any stage of the World War.

Why, in the name of common sense and of humaneness, dilly-dally and shilly-shally until more people are thrown idle and business becomes still worse before putting forth every possible effort to get things going in a less unsatisfactory direction?

SPECTATOR

Says:

New outbreak of liquidation just when the market seemed at the point of staging at least a modest improvement dashed out the flickering embers of hope and brought fresh apprehension for the new week.

Old Theory

It was noteworthy that further smart short covering took place on the old theory that the turn usually comes when things look blackest. And stocks certainly are low.

It is unfortunate that so far little else but words has come from Washington when quick and drastic action is needed. And it's going to take something dramatic, like a sales tax or a beer bill, to bring back something more than wavering confidence.

Disturbing Element

The current state of the bond market is undoubtedly the most disturbing element in the securities situation, raising the possibility as it does of new financial reverberations. . . . It is this factor which has been responsible for the heavy institutional and bank liquidation in the last few weeks . . . Prices of most bonds seem to have discounted even receivership, but this has failed to attract buyers.

Informed quarters are leaning more to the belief that a strong reflationary policy is in the making in administration circles, with the likelihood that this will be supported by the other side . . . France may hold back, but the French financial situation is far from as rosy as appears on the surface, and the end is expected, will be forced to do something quickly.

SAYS BUSINESS SHOULD STOP RETRENCHING

By FRANK H. MELOON

President Harry J. Haas of the American Bankers' Association expresses the belief that business should stop retrenching. Mr. Haas tells us:

Harry J. Haas

"There is a great volume of unsatisfied requirements overhanging the market. People have economized too much and too long. This suspended buying will be released by effective purchasing power and as soon as people feel that their jobs are secure, that the period of wage cutting has come to an end, that the destruction of values and purchasing power will go no further.

"The restoration of purchasing power is the paramount need. It can be accomplished only by restoring public confidence, and public confidence can be restored only by the return of a sense of unity. Within the scope of our business influence can do our part to re-establish confidence.

* * * *

Legislators in general might well study the work of the New Jersey solons, State Senator Arthur N. Pierson informs us New Jersey has "Balanced its State budget for this year and next without calling upon the taxpayers for one dollar of extra money."

* * * *

Paul L. Miller of the Iowa State College economics department, after a survey of markets and farmers shipping habits in Midwest States, expresses belief that through appropriate marketing agencies, growers can raise farm prices. This would be done, as he sees it, through adjustment of supplies to market demands. This is fine in theory, but doesn't always work out when tried. It was a co-operative poultry outfit which last winter broke the price of low-quality broilers in New York from 28 to 10 cents a pound temporarily by its ill-advised operation.

* * * *

There seems to be no assurance that farm groups are ever going to adjust supplies to market demands than industrial groups have shown themselves. Mr. Miller seems by brings out this very point when he declares it is becoming increasingly important that hog raisers scan market demands to avoid "dumping" their porkers and that farmers should be more aware of the dangerous tendency to "follow the leader." What Mr. Miller finds the hog raisers doing is, of course, the identical thing that has long been doing. First a tariff was sought to prevent foreign "dumping"; the tariff is now used for "dumping" in our domestic marts.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

DU PONT'S dividend cut to 75 cents a quarter today reflected in part the smaller income received by the company from its holdings of General Motors stock, amounting to about 9,900,000 shares. General Motors recently cut its annual dividend rate to $1 to $2.

New Lows Are Set by Leading Issues

Leading issues to establish new lows today included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Case, Penalberg, Eastman Kodak, International Business Machines, Auburn, Chrysler, North American and Woolworth.

Weakness in Rails Precedes a Rally

Weakness in rails today preceded such rallying as appeared, following the Union Pacific report.

Atchison and Union Pacific were the weak spots, and their slump sent the group to new low levels. Atchison broke under $30 a share. Pennsylvania went below $10, and Union Pacific came around $40 a share, prices few would have believed possible. Failure of rails today to turn up was a contributing factor to the decline.

McKesson & Robbins Making Progress

McKesson & Robbins, Inc., as result of research in its laboratories and through agreements with other laboratories, is making considerable progress in the distribution of products for the medical profession. This progress already is showing up in the sales statistics.

New products already introduced are McKesson's Copper and Iron Compound for anemia; Gadusan, for various forms of tuberculosis, and Salvacid, a revolutionary treatment for ulcers. The Copper and Iron Compound, a formula developed in the company's laboratories is sold only on physicians' prescription.

Columbia Gas Has Net of $6,481,071

Columbia Gas & Electric Corp. and subsidiaries report for three months ended March 31, 1932, net income after all charges, including taxes, depreciation interest, etc., of $6,481,071, equivalent after preferred dividends to 43 cents a share on 11,609,996 common shares outstanding at the close of the period. This compares with net income in corresponding period of $10,940,011 equivalent after preferred dividends to 64 cents a share on 11,684,220 common shares.

For the 12 months to March 31, last, net income was $10,872,931 equal to $1.21 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends, compared with $24,498,796 in the preceding 12 months, or $1.39 a share on the slightly larger number of common shares.

Chesapeake Corp.'s Dividend Meeting

Chesapeake Corp. meets for dividend action this week and the current price of the stock around 7½ clearly indicates the uncertainty of the street in regard to continuance of the present $3 annual rate. In authoritative quarters it is said that no definite decision has been reached, but it is not regarded likely that any change in the rate will be made.

A reduction in the payment to 60 cents from present total to 75 cents quarterly, would, if continued, bring total payments this year to $2.55 a share. That would provide sufficient income to the ANeghany Corp. to cover interest requirements on the Alleghany Corp. 5 per cent bonds of 1944 and 1949.

CLOSING IS FIRM IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, May 16—A late rally in Wall st. cancelled earlier losses in today's stock market and the closing tone was firm. Rails reduced or eliminated their declines and an assortment of industrials and utilities showed moderate net gains.

Atchison, which had been down 2½, erased its loss.

MODERATE GAINS SEEN.

Eastman, Westinghouse, American Can, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Drug, Allied Chemical and Du Pont finished with advances approximating a point. American Telephone firmer after losing 1½. Transactions totaled about 1,300,000 shares.

The general list staged a spotty rally following announcement of the cut in du Pont's dividend. Although selling was moderately active in the forenoon, the list was quiet most of the rest of the day.

The cut in du Pont's quarterly dividend to 75 cents from $1 had been regarded as almost a foregone conclusion since General Motors, in which it has a 23 per cent interest, recently cut its quarterly disbursement to 25 cents from 50.

BONDS WORK LOWER

Bonds were generally lower, influenced to some degree by the assassination of Japan's premier and uncertainty of events in Nippon.

Among important dividends due for action this week is that of American Telephone, whose directors meet on Wednesday. There has been no hint from sources close to the company as to whether the $2.25 quarterly rate will be maintained.

While current earnings are somewhat under the current dividend rate, the management is said to feel that requisitions upon surplus should be made in maintaining the payment in so far as it may be prudent to do so.

There was virtually no change in the character of the selling from that which has been trickling into the market during the past several days. It was of a slow studied character, suggesting further selling out of collateral loans, and liquidation by holders in need of cash.

The market went into the new week without benefit of particularly constructive news over Sunday. Outrages at Tokio were unsettling and it was not immediately apparent what the repercussions were to be. The yen sagged to a new low in the early foreign exchange dealings.

Steel, a weekly trade publication, said operations in the industry were holding at 24 per cent of capacity and that a somewhat greater degree of confidence had developed among producers.

Although a substantial increase in output is not in sight, authoritative requirements continue to expand moderately.

Commission house comment expressed doubt that the market's trend could be changed fithout the appearance of constructive news or a selling climax.

Weekly investment advisory services emphasized unsettling uncertainties, especially those at Washington.

Financial reports appearing over the week-end included that of Columbia Gas & Electric, which showed a reduction of $19,670,000 in bank loans since Jan. 1.

$1,500,000 Issue for Old Colony

Old Colony Railroad stockholders at a special meeting authorized the issuance of $1,500,000 bonds under the first mortgage, or $1,500,000 note to be secured by first mortgage bonds to pay or refund the issue of $1,000,000 3½s, maturing July 1 next, and discharge indebtedness to the New Haven for expenditures for additions and betterments in the sum of $500,000.

If directors determine the sale of bonds prior to July 1 will be inexpedient or unduly costly, they will be made to obtain a short-term loan on a note or notes.

Building Figures Are Encouraging

New York, May 16—Bradstreet's reports a little encouragement may be gained from the April figures on building permits. The value of new construction throughout the whole United States permitted for in April rose 26 per cent over March, normally, the month of April shows a gain of about 8 or 7 per cent over March. Thus the latest figures show an improvement of better than seasonal proportions. The April total for 215 cities of the United States was $47,741,687, which compares with $37,876,746 in March.

Eastern Gas & Fuel Net Is $5,305,027

Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates reports for 12 months ended April 30 total income of $14,019,271 available for depreciation and depletion reserves, interest, taxes and dividends. After all charges the net income (exclusive of all intercompany items) amounted to $5,305,027. After provision of $1,161,667 for 6½ per cent prior preference dividends and $72,550 for 6 per cent preferred dividends the surplus was $1,730,940.

Germany's Rubber Exports Hold Up

Washington, May 16—Considering economic plight of the world at large, and that of Germany in particular, German rubber goods exports held up well during 1931. The total value—$2,638,419—of German exports for the year was only 15 per cent below that in 1930.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

WE take off our hat to N. W. Ayer & Son for their recent message to American Business.

The headline bears repetition now: . . . "People are still People!"

Stocks may rise or fall, the budget perplex us, but the fundamental processes of life go on. Human emotions, human needs, human desires remain the same. People are still people.

Editorial recognition of this fact has built the mightiest magazine in the world, The American Weekly.

Only a great understanding of humanity, only an unerring grasp of "What interests people and why" could explain a circulation that is nearly double that of any other magazine in existence.

Even in times like these the urge to learn and know stirs in the human breast.

Examine The American Weekly and see how each and every phase of human knowledge is lighted and made bright in this magazine for the people.

People are still interested in people—their lives, their loves, their tragedies and adventures.

No other publication on earth charts and sets forth the thrilling stories from real life with such consummate skill and interest.

From life, that great storehouse from which Shakespeare, Goethe, Dumas, Dickens, Ibsen, Balzac, de Maupassant, Stevenson, Tolstoy, and all the other masters of the craft of writing drew inspiration, The American Weekly draws an unending stream of thrilling narrative.

Not edited for any group or cult or creed, but conceived and published for all the people, this Mighty Magazine has won welcome entry into five and one-half million American homes.

To sell in volume, the successful advertiser must reach people—buyers in great volume.

What a market then is offered by The American Weekly, especially in times like these.

One out of every five homes in the United States, located in the richest buying areas in the nation, reached through the medium of the world's most interesting magazine.

The price—$16,000, less than ⅓ cent per home for a color page that is more than twice the size of any other magazine page.

The most circulation at the lowest cost per family. That's the challenge of The American Weekly.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Sunday Newspapers. In 578 of America's 997 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 70% of its circulation.

In each of 152 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 108 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 146 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 172 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,700,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

THIS IS LIFE

FRENCHMAN GIVES US HINT ON HOW TO DEVELOP A NATIONAL CHARACTER

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IT WAS INTERESTING on Sunday afternoon to hear Andre Maurois talking from Paris in the International Forum period. Last week I heard Winston Churchill (the English one, I mean) being very clear and decided and quite Winstonish in spite of the static. I do not know how long these have been going on, nor how long they are to go on, but they seem to me really worth while. The human voice is the most revealing expression of personality, and the personality of any human being with a national or international reputation is worth trying to decipher.

PROF. ROGERS

Andre Maurois, you know, is the Frenchman who invented a formula of biography different from Strachey's or Bradford's. His method is imagine little conversations which might just as well have happened as not. Mostly they did not, but one feels that they light up an historical figure better than any amount of statistical stuff with references to documents in the appendix. All of which makes his books on Shelley and Disraeli charming reading.

M. Maurois was to speak on French Character, and that, as he sensibly admitted, was a large order. (He could have done it better if his sponsor had not been so intolerably long winded in his introduction.) What he said was not new, but a remark here and there set me to comparing his France with our America and trying to make up my mind about us.

Paris Center of French Life

France, to abridge M. Maurois, has been a highly centralized country ever since Louis XIV. Today it is more highly centralized than ever. Everything is managed from Paris. Political parties may rise and fall but that has no effect on the permanent government officials in the departments. "Every year all children who have reached the age of 16 conclude their school courses by taking the same examinations."

In Germany there are three centers at least, Berlin, Munich and Dresden. In Italy, at least three, Rome, Milan and Florence. In France there is only one center, political, social, intellectual and artistic. All plays are produced, all books published in Paris. Most of the successful Parisians hail from the provinces, but to Paris they go, taking with them their provincial beliefs and points of view. All the best minds are to be found in Paris. Paris is the brain that is fed by the blood of the whole country. Her political men are constantly in touch with the very best in French intelligence and success.

France is a country of peasant proprietors, conservatives, thrifty, laborious, who love the land and will sacrifice much for it. The city people, the successful careerists in Paris, have the same characteristics. The business class are grave and prudent, no gamblers even in stocks. The Frenchman, peasant or bourgeois, is not ambitious. He lives quietly; he wishes to save to provide for his children. That is why France has succeeded in rebuilding her fortunes since 1926 and is far better off economically than the rest of the world, including the United States.

In France marriage is not a reckless adventure, a matter of mere liking, but a permanent association of grave responsibilities, in which the woman is supposed to bear her share as equal partner. That is why marriage works so well in France.

Politicians Patriots First

Finally, France is not Utopian. She is not interested in notions which, however beautiful, seem unlikely to work. Her ideals must be reasonable. She will not sacrifice herself for castles in Spain. She will, however, sacrifice herself in the grand manner for an ideal which engages her convictions and her passions, for the BEAU GESTE. The political divisions are strong and sharp, but both parties unite absolutely on two points; the unity of the country and the defence of the land. Sufficient to herself, she desires no conquests; she desires only peace.

This last, although undoubtedly absolutely sincere in M. Maurois and undoubtedly true as a fact, has been so often repeated as to be a bit trite. On that note the speaker ended, leaving the thoughtful American considerably impressed and a bit dubious about some of our little tricks and manners.

The most interesting comparison lies between Paris and Washington. Paris controls French political and intellectual and artistic life. Washington is merely political, a congery of second and third rate intelligences brought together by popular election, plus thousands of the kind of people who want easy and permanent jobs. The intellectual and artistic and financial life of the nation centers in New York. Either flock every talented and ambitious boy and girl. Never to Washington! Hence a duchotomy in our country which makes for extreme lack of co-ordination, almost anarchy.

Washington a Nuisance to Us

Since France is a small and homogenous nation, Paris impresses its point of view on the people or, to put it better, France synthesizes the opinion of France and returns it to the provinces in authoritative and final form. New York, of course, does not do that. New York secretes literary and artistic and intellectual opinion from large numbers of brilliant and ambitious adventurers (young and youngish), who have no common backgrounds, no common culture, no common beliefs and no common program. It is a culture of brilliant individualists, which is distributed over the "provinces" in magazines and books without really influencing it and without at all representing it.

The result is that the American provinces, each in its own sectional way, consider Washington a nuisance, managed by people who are not considered very seriously at home, and New York a kind of foreign Gehenna that is debauching and misrepresenting the real America of the home folks.

Paris was a slow and inevitable growth. Washington was a piece of political log-rolling and New York a commercial accident. Sometimes I think we should do better if we were to move the capital of the country out of the center of population, or even to Kansas, and then pass laws forbidding plays to be produced, magazines and books to be published, and stock market transactions to be carried on, except in the national capital at Emporia.

That procedure might, in a hundred years, give us a homogenous culture, particularly if it were made obligatory for all citizens of continental antecedents to take old Yankee names.

Even if it did nothing more, it might civilize Kansas!

SWOONS IDENTIFYING SUSPECT

HOLDUP VICTIM THINKS 'GIANT' IS ONE OF MEN

Three Others Also Say Keyes Is Man Who Robbed Them in Dorchester and Worcester

After partially identifying Joseph Keyes, of Inwood st., Dorchester, as the "giant bandit" named in a series of holdups, Charles Lamb, of Standish st., Dorchester, collapsed twice today in police headquarters.

Lamb, a garageman, employed by the Mt. Bowdoin Coal Co., of Norwell st., Dorchester, was one of a dozen holdup victims called to headquarters to view Keyes in the line-up.

Lamb told headquarters detectives that he was "quite sure, but not positive" that Keyes was the man who held him up about a month ago.

Then he collapsed.

After being revived Lamb faced Keyes again and asked him to put on his topcoat and cover the lower part of his face with a handkerchief.

"I'm not positive," Lamb said, "but he looks like the man who ordered us against the wall and took the money. There were two other men with him."

Lamb collapsed a second time and was taken to his home in a police ambulance.

IDENTIFIED BY THREE

Keyes was positively identified by three other holdup victims today, bringing the total of holdups accredited to a "Mutt and Jeff" pair to seven. Police will delay definite charges against Keyes until after his appearance tomorrow in the police line-up.

Charles Shrago, a clerk in the office of the People's Coal Co., in Calendar st., Dorchester, identified Keyes today as one of two men who held up the company several weeks ago. Shrago told police a third man waited in a car outside while the pair cowered him to "stand still" and demanded "the oughda."

Lieut. Edward C. Bulthcer, of the Worcester police, took two Worcester holdup victims to headquarters to view Keyes.

William Deshaies, owner of a Worcester confectionery store said Keyes "looked like the man who held me up a week ago and took $50 and a check while the little fellow pilfed the cash register."

Joseph Murphy of Charlotte st., Worcester, positively identified Keyes as the bandit who held up a Worcester meat market on May 7.

Keyes has already been identified by Fire Captain Edward Foley of Worcester as the gunman who held him up several weeks ago.

The "giant bandit" was captured early yesterday by four police officers as he entered the rear door of his home. Police say they found a loaded revolver on him.

INDORSED BY SOCIETY

Mrs. Edith Wenham Clarke president of [illegible] Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was instructed by her members, of about 300, to record their action in favor of such legislation.

A similar resolution, which went around the [illegible] Federal loan issue, extended [illegible] needy, [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the business depression will be given to the delegate body of the Mass. Federation of State Federation of Women's Clubs at its annual state meeting this week at Swampscott, [illegible] the chairman of [illegible] home, Mrs. Leon Conwell of Somerville, the resolution submitted to the state president, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, will be read and the body will then be asked to take action.

ONLY SENSIBLE WAY

Speaking of the possibilities of the loan issue as suggested by William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. Limbach, who heads an organization of about 200 women, said:

"Such a Prosperity Loan to our mind is the only sensible way of giving immediate relief to a situation that savors of horrible unpleasantries. We don't want to think of even worse conditions befalling the American populace, yet I must admit that unless Congress sees fit to enact legislation which would speed this relief measure on its way, greater hardship and suffering are inevitable."

SHIPBUILDING MEN STRIKE

Fighting against wage cuts more than 100 employes of the Atlantic and Simpson shipbuilding works, subsidiaries of the Bethlehem shipbuilding corporation walked out at the East Boston yards today.

Starting shortly after opening time at the Atlantic plant on Everett ave., the walkout spread to the entire plant and by noon nearly all the employes of the Simpson Dry Dock at Jeffries Point had joined the strikers.

A committee of 16 chosen from the various trades at the yard had a conference with George Stebbins, general manager, but no agreement was reached. The committee then announced that the strike would continue until the wage cutting was stopped.

Capt. Skillings Proves His Skill as Horse Trader

There are a lot of good horse trainers in the Boston police department and that's not [illegible]

That horse for whom the department has been quickening for the [illegible] weeks was finally purchased today for $350—and a few minutes later Capt. Perley S. Skillings had an offer of $500 for it.

If the department decided itself to horse trading for a while enough money might thus be made to permit adding a few more policemen to the force—but a bargain is a bargain and the horse bought will not be sold.

It will be named, however. It comes from Kansas, is 15 hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. If you can suggest a name, address your suggestion to Capt. Skillings.

Hawks Undergoes Last Face Operation

Capt. Frank Hawks, speed flier [illegible] underwent at Phillips House what was expected to be the final operation on his face for the purpose of eradicating marks of injuries suffered in a crack-up at Worcester several weeks ago.

"We could save something by entertaining at home," Bill told Nevis, as they were considering looking for a larger apartment.

What Has Gone Before

It was taken for granted that Bill Lancaster would enter his father's lead pipe manufacturing business after he graduated from college. However, following his marriage to Nevis Hammond, he leaves the little Pennsylvania town where he was raised and goes to New York to sell bonds. The young couple give a house-warming. Among the guests are Sam Burton, Bill's college chum, Sam's sister, Fluff Waterford, Batch Dorgan, a class-mate, and his stage-struck fiancee, Marise Norton. Later they make a round of the night-clubs and Nevis and Bill return to their topsy-turvy home at [illegible] a.m.

Now Go On With the Story

"DON'T ASK ME. Ask her. She's looking for her mate or something. She's very keen on the mate business just now. She has fits and starts. Once, she did welfare work.

"Then she went in for polo and tailored effects. That caused something of a rift. Then she tried to get into the movies but she doesn't photograph well. Then she had a spell of being grande dame, whatever that is. Some people call her 'hellzapoppin' American populace, yet I must admit that unless Congress sees fit to enact legislation which would speed this relief measure on its way, greater hardship and suffering are inevitable."

During that autumn Bill and Nevis went often to the Hunts and to the Carlisle Lees and Fluff Waterford were building a little place on Westchester and six acres of ground and the stables which were Lester's latest public fancy and a fifteenth century house which Bill remarked no French peasant would ever recognize without a guide book. They met others of the mad county and B[illegible] the golf club, played there late into the fall. Someone would motor Nevis down to town and then go to somebody else's house for supper and to dance. Nevis had given up her domestic ambitions. The maid a part-time person of efficient and slightly disapproving mien was hired. There wasn't time [illegible] and a letter home to do the necessary and keep up with Bill.

BILL MAKING MONEY

What worried her most was entertaining. You couldn't go on indefinitely accepting things from people. She tried, in November to work up all the meals she'd eaten. "If laid end to end——" she remarked to Bill.

"You couldn't entertain in the flat except small groups now and then. She and Bill gave one inclusive dinner dance at the club before it closed. It had cost them plenty. In New York, of course, there remained the speakeasies. There was one on Third ave. which didn't exist their. They tried getting the crowd together there. "Holy jumping Joseph!" said Bill, regarding the check. But he said it silently.

He was making money—was taking a flier on the market now and then on tips from Waterford and Sam. As yet he hadn't lost. But their expense kept pace as a [illegible] on.

They motored, 14 of them, to New Haven for one of the games that fall. Bill and Sam were the [illegible] of the party in New Haven were had a dozen undergraduates and their girls. Les and Fluff [illegible] Cary, Olive Blanchard, an odd man or two and [illegible] constituted the rest [illegible] had a perfectly stupendous time. But Bill said, as they followed the crowds out of the Bowl: "Funny how quickly you get away from it, isn't it? I feel about 18 years older than those kids."

Nevis said, her eyes shining: "I don't. But it was funny—not seeing you down there—in the mud."

Bill answered, grinning, a little [illegible] more than a little nostalgic: "It would be funnier if you had seen me. I'm getting fat and the old wind isn't what it used to be."

Chick Maynard," commented Nevis, speaking of the quarterback, "is he meeting us afterward? He played a marvelous game, Bill."

"Hey, don't go falling for a football hero!" warned Bill, in mock anxiety.

HE SQUEEZED HER ARM

"I did it once," she reminded him, laughing.

He squeezed her arm. The field they were leaving was still a riot of noise, color, music, howling maniacs. The crowd pressed thick about them, they held one another closely. Sam, looking over his shoulder, yelled: "Hey, step on it, you two, we'll never get to the cars."

Bill hurried Nevis along thinking. He was remembering . . . freshman days . . . the grand, disorderly, [illegible] good times . . . the night they had wrecked a Boston theater after a Yale-Harvard game, played in Cambridge. He was remembering the feel of the dirt under his feet . . . the grunt, when the wind was knocked out of him . . . the taste of his own jaw . . . remembering the [illegible] shrieks from the onlookers, the voices of the coaches . . . the white figures of the referees. Remembering Zap

Day and the fence and his own empty, almost panicky sensation when a hand touched him on the shoulder.

"There goes Bill Lancaster, the All-American halfback Skull and Bones man . . ."

WINTER WENT BY

Pretty far off now . . .

The w[illegible]

Lots to do and see. Theaters, shops, bridge parties. Nevis was a good deal with Fluff Waterford and even more with Della, square faced, brown haired, careless about her clothes, healthy, vital and saleratus-ing . . .

"Why not move out here? Della would say. "It will save you all the wear and tear of getting home again after a party."

Bill was contemplating just such an action. He discussed it with Nevis: "We could save something by entertaining at home if we had a bigger place and, after all, most of the crowd lives out there, that way. If not in Westhyne then in Glen Cove or Oyster Bay. I think it's a hot notion. I was talking to the agent here the other day. He says we'd have no trouble sub-letting. Half of the apartments in this building are owned, cooperative, you know. There's a premium on the other half. Everyone's looking for places just this size."

"They're crazy!" commented Nevis, who looked disconcertedly about the little apartment which had seemed so exactly right not many months before.

In the spring Nevis went to reunion. Returning, she told Bill:

"It's just as you say—you feel out of it—somehow. I don't know why. Everyone can't feel that way, can they? I met a lot of the girls from the class ahead of me. All they could talk about was their babies and how they hoped that they'd be all right [illegible] while the fond mothers were away."

Bill laughed.

AWFULLY LONESOME.

"It's swell having you home. I've been awfully lonesome. Haven't," he went on irrelevantly, "been home a night. You missed Olive's party, Nevis. It was a knockout. She had a patriot theme and a Fellow to read your bumps. You know, it's time I got on the bowling a game a couple years ago? I've always had a bump there since. This gus said it showed great business instinct . . . I'd be a well known financier some day, too, should have heard Sam shout. He and I stayed at Della's over night. Olive said she knew just the place for us down there. The people are going abroad for a couple of years. They'd lease, with an option to buy. The rent's rather stiff and they want to rent furnished. But I think it would pay us in the long run. We can't keep up with the crowd as things are now. And we have to keep up with them if I'm to do business with them. The house, the one Olive had in mind, is on Old Lyme lane. She took me to see it, next morning. Isn't like it. He said enthusiastically, and got out pencil and paper to sketch the arrangement of the rooms.

She had an impulse to say: "Why didn't you wait for me. Did you have to go house-hunting for our house with Olive Blanchard?" She did not say it, however. Looking over his shoulder: "That's the funniest looking set of rooms I ever saw. Haven't they any windows?" she inquired, mildly.

RUN DOWN IN CAR.

"I'm not an artist," he defended himself. "What do you say we run down there Saturday afternoon in the car and look at it?" he asked carelessly.

"Car? Whose? Sam's?"

"Ours! I bought it while you were away. One of Hunt's. He's getting a new one for Della. You know, the little roadster, the one you liked, dark blue with orange trim. It's gone only some miles and he's letting me have it dirt cheap. And that's another reason for moving out—so I can drive in," he argued ridiculously, triumphantly, "and save commutation! Besides, garage room here in town is something fierce. They soak the living daylights out of you."

Nevis said, helplessly: "Oh, Bill!"

"Well, why not? We needed a car. It's good business, isn't it?"

"We can't afford it."

"Sure we can. Besides, you've got to put up a good front in this job or you don't get anywhere. No use trying to sell gilt-edge securities looking as if you didn't know where your next meal was coming from! What sas, shall we go down at [illegible] and look at it?"

SHE WOULDN'T LIKE IT.

Nevis was sure she wouldn't like [illegible] Blanchard had picked out. Olive with her thin years affectation of clinging gowns and green-lidded eyes and dim lights and fortune-tellers and incense. Olive, so Della had assured her would get over it and would probably appear next years as a tomato or a mushroom-doors blindly. Only this year Olive was going in for tragic and melancholy and wearing a pale grim one. Nevis didn't dislike her There wasn't, she thought, anything there to dislike. Anything definite. It was all sometimes and someone gaga here and there effects. She hadn't the remotest idea of what the authentic Olive was like—if there was an authentic Olive. She felt shy had begun to feel uncomfortable at her now, heavy-lidded gaze, her velvet bounces, her sudden slow showing and at the enamel touch of her white hands with her pastel nails on Bill's coat sleeve. "Bill darling—come, take me out under the stars. I stifle in this atmosphere!"

Well, not so thick as that, of course, but sophisticating it. And Bill, the poor, beloved idiot, falling for it. "She's not a bad sort, after all. Pretty good little sport. Pity she didn't get into the movies—she'd be a knockout."

"Pity," said Della, also. "She didn't make the grade in Hollywood and she couldn't get over this quick change emotion business of hers to work."

On Saturday Nevis went with Bill to see the house. The blue roadster ran like a dream smoothly, swiftly. Bill, happy, happy boy, less, the sun on his blond head, brown hands clasped on the wheel.

Bill and Nevis decide to move. Will Nevis like it? See tomorrow's installment.

The Marry-Go-Round; Who's 'It'?

THE REASON why a 50-50 marriage is as rare as a day in June, even in this era of economic equality, is because it's so hard to find [illegible]

ONE member of the matrimonial team is nearly always the "sturdy oak," while the other is the clinging—or, at least, the non-resisting—vine, just because God made it that way. And it isn't a matter of sex, or a matter of economics, but a matter of WILL POWER!

In nearly every marriage there is one "Mussolini" or one "Hitler." And it's easy to tell at a glance whether the Boss of the family is the Lord of the Manor or [illegible] in the flowered beach pajamas.

It doesn't take a Sherlock Holmes, a clairvoyant or a psychoanalyst to discover who chooses the morning newspaper and the brand of cigarettes for the household, who picks out the car, who decides what to have for dinner and who will decide where to go for the summer.

It's as clear as the June weather and as obvious as a Broadway electric sign.

You can tell who holds the balance of power, just by the way in which a man honks the horn when he's waiting for his wife. Whether he blows it ran[illegible] of three-minute intervals or touches it apologetically at timid 20-minute intervals.

[illegible] he opens doors and curtains of the car as related. Whether for the convenience [illegible] for the comfort of the "assistant driver" in the back seat.

You know by the careful, solicitous way in which a man helps his wife across the street. Or by the careful way in which he SHOVES her across.

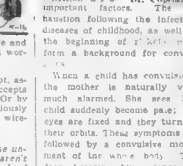
And you can tell by the expression on a man's face when his wife is late [illegible] approximately.



with him. Whether it is acute and resentful or just pained and wor[illegible]

You can tell by the prompt, assured way in which a man accepts your invitation to dinner or by the way he glances surreptitiously at his wife, until he gets a wireless telling him what to do.

* * *

But don't fancy that these unevenly matched couples aren't perfectly happy and delighted with each other. There is always ONE of a pair who LIKES to be bossed and thought for and have things decided for him or her—and one who likes to rule. And as long as God and Nature continue to make human beings without matching them the 50-50 marriage will be only a sweet chimera! A charming phantasy of the idealistic!

If Baby Has Convulsions, Take Care to Avoid Epilepsy

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

INSTABILITY of the nervous system is characteristic of the immature brain of the infant and young child. For this reason slight causes, that would have but little effect upon the more mature brain, sometimes produce convulsive attacks in the young. [illegible] nervous system [illegible] a tendency to convulsions.

Any severe disturbance of the nutrition of the body, anemia and malnutrition are frequent important factors. The exhaustion following the infectious diseases of childhood, as well as the beginning of [illegible] often form a background for convulsions.

When a child has convulsions the mother is naturally very much alarmed. She sees her child suddenly become pale; the eyes are fixed and they turn in their orbits. These symptoms are followed by a convulsive movement of the whole body. The face becomes blue, especially about the mouth; the pulse is feeble and the child goes into unconsciousness, seeming to be at the point of death. The nervous system of the child is in such a condition of excitability that one convulsion may occur after another. This is particularly true if he is not kept perfectly quiet.

When a child has repeated attacks of convulsions, epilepsy may follow. This is apt to be the case in families where some oldsters have been afflicted with this condition.

Epilepsy has been known to develop in children between the ages of two and three years, although cases develop between 10 and 20 years. It is an extremely serious affliction, sometimes wrecking the mentality as well as the health of the patient.

Chicken Supreme Pleases

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

"MY HUSBAND SAYS—Three cheers for Martha, long may she wave," writes a loyal little lady from Arlington. "I didn't know a thing about cooking when I was married two years ago and we had some pretty awful spells of indigestion. But now I am not afraid to tackle anything from cream puffs to cheese soufflé with one of your recipes to go by. I couldn't get in to class last week so please do send me a lesson sheet."

Do you wonder that we keep needing a larger and larger head size in our hats? With letters like these to egg us on—because please—to further effort to find new and practical recipes for you? We're sending L. C. H. this week's lesson sheet and we'll be glad to send you a copy, too, if you'll drop us a line. The Chicken Supreme the woman told us was "an answer to a prayer." She said she'd been looking for years for a Golden Sauce to serve on fricasseed chicken. Here it is:

CHICKEN SUPREME

Supreme of chicken is really chicken fricasee a bit glorified. For the average family you will need a three-pound chicken cut for fricasseeing. Almost cover this with [illegible] salted water and simmer until chicken is very tender—about 2 hours. Pour off the stock and set away to cool. Remove the skin from the chicken meanwhile. Skim off the fat from the chicken stock and use 3 tbsps. of it for the sauce. Heat the 3 tbsps. of fat [illegible] and [illegible] flour and [illegible] cups of the chicken stock. Stir until smooth. Season highly with salt and pepper. Beat 2 egg yolks and add to ½ cup of thin cream. Stir this last of all into the sauce. Arrange the chicken on rounds of toast on a large platter. Pour the sauce over it. Pile fluffy boiled rice around the edge and dust with paprika and minced parsley.

Etiquette for Dining Table

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a gentleman is sitting down to a dinner table between two ladies, which one should he help with her chair?—E. D.

First, he should help the woman on his right, and then, as quickly as he can, the woman on his left. If, however, it happens that the woman on his left is an appreciably older woman, or a woman of such distinction that she naturally "rates" the first attention, then he should first assist her to take her place.

The Shower Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to a shower with a young man friend and please tell me what to put on the card in the gift.—DOT.

On the card enclosed with your gift, you might perhaps write, "Dearest love to you, Mary, and every good wish for your happiness," or, if you do not know the girl this well, write perhaps, "To you, Mary, with high-hearted wishes for your happiness."

He Has No Love For the Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Several years ago, I met a man at a dance and went out with him for a year before he told me that he was married, and had two children. By that time I loved him so much I didn't care and continued going with him.

Fourteen months ago his wife died, and it seems since that time he has changed. When I question him about this, he says that he must stay home with the children, who are living with his mother.

H. W. M.

Dear H. W. M.: Well, my dear, you are now face to face with the fact that although men may encourage women to be unconventional, they are really quite old-fashioned and conservative about the women they marry. This one seems to be very selfish and self-centered. He can't be in love with you. You are young; take up some new interests—and remember in the future not to put your faith to a married man.

Daily True Story

The Narrow Squeak

THE SMALL bottle slid away from the tired fingers that tried to clutch it and Jane Morris caught her breath and gasped at the thin crackle of breaking glass. The fitful light of the lamp, blown by a draft from under the door, had made it [illegible] and the dark [illegible] of the winter night had tensed her nerves to fatal awkwardness.

Uselessly she reached for the bottle—the last bit of Danny's precious medicine lost! From the label started the words that seemed to [illegible] at her fright: "Measure carefully. Time accurately." Danny must have the third dose. Jane stared fearfully at the clock on the table—he must have it in 20 minutes! Could he stand the trip to town in such a storm? She must try it!

Jane hurried to the bed. With an anxious look at Danny's pale little face, she began to wrap him carefully in the worn blanket. Fumbling in her haste, she put on her long coat—that, half buttoned, was dragged off again to be folded around Danny. She would be all right in her old red sweater. Jane seized her lantern and lighted it . . . the bit of oil had to be enough. Out in the barn was the old car—and in a trice she had brought it to the door.

Jane laid the whimpering Danny on the back seat and from her aching heart murmured. "Oh, Danny, baby, don't cary—you're so weak and tired."

"How much time left?" she thought, and she spurred the old car to plunge on at its best speed. "It's for Danny—Danny—we must do [illegible]. Hurry, hurry!" And she was trying to will the miles to shorten . . . Through her mind flashed the wearing days of winter. She saw Hugh Morris's haggard face as he sighed, "Take care of Danny . . . he's all that's left of me . . . beloved." She lived again her days of bleak despair when Hugh was gone, when she moved into the grim automaton about the dreary little house. She saw days when she neither ate nor slept . . . Then the wrenching pain of Danny's cold and fever . . .

"Oh, Danny, we must hurry, hurry! Danny, dear!" Jane cried softly, and a little moan answered her.

Then on again, urging the little car to its limit, straining eyes searching the road through the darkness, hands tense on the wheel, mind pulling toward the old doctor in town . . . only six . . . must be within a mile or two of town . . . there was the railroad crossing—just a mile farther! And then the light swung red through the rain . . . The Express was coming, down around the bend . . . Jane could hear its rumble and the weird fan of light spread by the engine.

Just then a rising roar caught her ear—another train? No, it was a bumping, crashing sound . . . of a sudden Jane knew. It was another landslide in the cut . . . and the cut was around the other bend, and the engine's headlight would never catch the debris in time for halt . . . Jane shuddered away from the crash and the horror . . . in her mind she could hear groans and shrieks of agony . . . but she must hurry, hurry!

"Danny, you're my all!"

Those people on the train—little children, perhaps—but what had she to do with them? They rode through the night, from city to city, on pleasure, on business—strangers all . . . a whimper from the back seat pierced her flashing thoughts. She could still make the crossing . . . she had made it! She would get her precious charge to the doctor . . . he was her trust, one living thing in her hands to save and love . . . But into the sensitive of her mind slipped a vision of a bluecoated figure that was even now at the throttle of that engine, peering ahead into the night, watchful for the safety of his train, for the lives of his passengers . . . one man, with the lives of his [illegible] in his [illegible]

Suddenly Jane was out of the car. With the murmur, "Danny . . . understand?" upon her lips, she was running along the track, stumbling and wavering as she dragged the [illegible] water and waved it wildly over her head . . . for an instant of terror she almost fled from the [illegible] of the engine . . . then a sharp blast from the whistle warned her, and as she flung herself at one side the train was coming to a crashing stop. The engineer was climbing from his cab, and hurrying along the track . . . "It's a landslide in the cut," shouted a brakeman . . . but Jane was blindly stumbling back to Danny . . . oh, she must hurry . . . what were all the people in the world to Danny?

Back in the clubcar a single passenger was muttering crossly, as he flung his newspaper aside . . . "Can't sleep, can't even read, for all these jerks and bounces" . . . "Humph," he grunted wrathfully, "another joy-rider trying to beat the train; well, he made it by a [illegible] scratch" . . . and he went back to his newspaper.

But up around the bend the engineer was seeing again the windblown figure that had waved the train on. Danny, the way she had risked [illegible] well, he himself would take a ride up here tomorrow and find out who she was and what could be done for her.

And over in town an old doctor administered the medicine that was to break the hold of the fever upon the body of a frail child, while a trembling woman was weeping and thanking God silently for many things.

Midol takes pain off the calendar. Monthly martyrdom is foolish. For Midol is as harmless as the aspirin tablet you take for your headache! All drug stores; just ask for Midol.

"VILLAGE VAMP" SUED FOR $20,000 IN "THEFT" OF HUSBAND

EX-WIFE SAYS 2D MARRIAGE IS ILLEGAL

Vet's Honeymoon With N. H. Girl Financed With First Mate's Funds

To a "simple country maiden" Mrs. Edelle Thornton, formerly of Boston, lost the love of her husband, Mack D. Thornton she alleged today in a $20,000 alienation of affections suit on file at Laconia, N. H., against the former Barbara Dwight belle of New Hampton, N. H.

Although Barbara, who, she alleges, was the village vamp, has married Thornton Mrs. Thornton alleges that they are living together illegally, here as the Nevada divorce is not good.

ASKS SEPARATION

In addition to her action for $20,000 Mrs. Thornton has brought suit in the same court against Thornton for a decree of separation and for support and maintenance.

Papers in both actions have been served on Thornton and Barbara in the New Hampton home where they have been living together since their alleged illegal marriage only three weeks after he obtained the Nevada divorce.

It is claimed that the first wife that such a divorce is not legally valid in New Hampshire and that even if it were the quick marriage would be illegal.

HUSBAND WAR VET

"My husband and I," she said today, "came up here in the country just after the World War because Mack's health had been shattered by his arduous navy service aboard a destroyer on convoy duty.

"We had been happy at our home in Boston, but we thought this place with farming, hunting and fishing to keep us busy, would be just heaven. It didn't turn out so. Barbara came here, and this New Hampton girl saw her chance. They met at a grange dance."

"After a while, Mack told me he loved the other woman and wanted to be free. I thought he'd come to his senses, so I refused to divorce him. I guess I was wrong. He took the automobile I had bought him with my father's money, drove out to Nevada, got some sort of divorce, came back to New Hampton, and married Miss Dwight within three weeks."

HER FORTUNE GONE

"They took their honeymoon in Mack's hunting camp at Pittsburg, N. H., for which I had furnished the money. They've still got the automobile for which I paid.

"I brought the suits only because I'm hard pressed and because it is unfair that after putting up my little fortune, my husband should go to another woman and leave me to shift for myself.

"I loved him—but I don't want him back. Things couldn't ever be the same after what has happened."

ROMANCE RUINED BY "VILLAGE VAMP"

MRS. THORNTON

MACK D. THORNTON

Mack D. Thornton, shown in a sylvan setting during the early days of marital happiness with his first wife, Mrs. Edelle Thornton, formerly of Boston, before Barbara Dwight, "belle of New Hampton, N. H.," came into their lives. Mrs. Thornton is now suing the girl for $20,000 in Laconia, N. H. She charges her husband's divorce and subsequent marriage to the "village vamp" were illegal. The suit has just been filed.

Want to Go on the Stage? Here's Your Big Chance

Want to go on the stage?

Not the high school or church festival platform, but a real stage with real actors and actresses, stage hands, scenery, footlights and a professional orchestra on the other side to accompany your song or dance?

The stage of the RKO Keith's Theater, for instance.

Here is the opportunity, and a GENUINE OPPORTUNITY. The RKO Keith management, in co-operation with the Boston American, will produce an Opportunity "Revue" at the RKO Keith's Theater that beautiful playhouse erected as a memorial to B. F. Keith whose Golden Jubilee is being celebrated throughout the country from coast to coast. Every theater on the RKO circuit is joining in a salute to Boston the city of achievements.

50 TO BE USED

Bobby Connolly, famous Broadway dancing star, and Broadway's gold Follies and other musical successes is now preparing the book words and music for the revue. Arrangements will be made for professional direction at reasonable cost.

Sixty to 70 local people will be used in the various specialties, chorus units and ensemble numbers and there will be a contest with costumes, make-up, etc., if you happen to be an attractive boy or girl you may be chosen for the ensemble numbers. If you have studied dancing, singing, or if you possess originality, you may be chosen for a specialty act. In other words, if you have something to do you may be given a chance to do it.

Of course, not everyone who will be given an audition will be successful and compete in the revue and manage to get on the stage, but everyone who is successful will be rewarded with a position in a Broadway show and be featured in the same manner that New York's musical shows are staged.

COUPON THIS ALL

You will be notified as to the time and place you are to appear at the stage door for the auditions. Just clip the application blank printed on page [illegible] of this issue, fill it out and mail it to the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, Washington square, Boston.

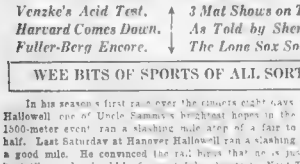
WEE BITS OF SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

In his season's first race over the cinders eight days ago, Don Hallowell, one of Uncle Sammy's brightest hopes in the Olympic 1500-meter event, ran a slashing mile atop of a fair to middling half. Last Saturday at Hanover Hallowell ran a slashing half at a good mile. He convinced the rail birds that he is just at the "point" now, he should be for next July's big test. Next Thursday, in New York Gene Venzke, Old Glory's other and perhaps brighter, 1500-meter hope, will make his season's debut on a dirt track. The work of the long, lean Mercury Post greyhound will be even closer watched than was the first outdoor race of the Harvard flyer. Hallowell has proven he's always on a fast track. Venzke didn't stroke his heart racing gait until last fall. All of Gene's sensational races were run on cinder paths. There is some doubt over Marvelous Gene's ability to carry his speed and stay over the cinders as he does over the boards. There is coming on Gene to fling his feet in the face of the world's best milers at Los Angeles. But it pays a good deal to keep the hot tip on Venzke the skeptics



Venzke is not going to make his dirt track debut at the full mile distance. He is running "short" at 1000 yards. Venzke has proved he has the strength and stamina to go the full route. What he needs most is speed. He will develop speed by running at the shorter distances. Besides it is a training axiom to run a route at a distance under what he is to race. Most trainers, however, prefer to launch a training campaign by having a punter develop wind and stamina with longer races and then to taper off and run under distance the last two or three weeks. What'll come do at 1000 yards? Later in the season he'll crack the 1000-yard record as sure as you're born. He had likely to do so in his season's inaugural race. But can never can tell what a wonder like Gene Venzke really will do. Even in his first race of the season the Mercury Post greyhound is likely to shoot Father Time his wake. After last winter's sensational races anything Gene Venzke may do would be a surprise.

Harvard has voted to knock down the football prizes on the Yale-Dartmouth and Army games from Nov. 5 to the Penn State, Brown and Holy Cross games from the week end of Nov. 12. And for the first time will be let in to see New Hampshire and Buffalo. If the Red Sox keep on losing Bob Quinn will have to reduce the gate to 10 cents. Congratulations to Arthur Duffey, Jr. for flinging his feet in the face of a scholastic sprint field just like his old man did 53 years ago. Imagine was it more than 40 years ago Art Duffey was thrilling the sporting world with his sensational speed? Time flies almost as fast as the Duffeys. And doesn't look natural to see Herbert Hayes in the announcer's den. Wonder if that kid, Jimmy Owens, who covered the 100 in 9 3-5 at St. Louis, last Saturday, is in position to the first amateur, Jesse Owens, who beat 10 seconds for the 100. The last we heard of Johnny Owens he was one of the country's biggest automobile manufacturers. According to Jesse's picture he is of different "composition" than Johnny.

"I remember Martin Sheridan's name coming after the Olympic games of 1908," remarked one of the alumnee guard of the champion Ship Mayo football team that plays at Roswell field, Cambridge, next Sunday. "Women and women of little Bohola gave the Pride of Mayo a wonderful reception."

"Yes, and we've often heard Marvelous Martin laughingly tell of it. 'Once I had a bit of a swelled head,' Martin would grin, 'but I was cured of it.' Then Martin would explain the "cure." It seems that after mass on a Sunday morning the whole parish gathered outside the little church and Sheridan, clad in his Olympian Olympian traveling uniform of white duck pants with blue [illegible] vest with the Old Colors shield over the heart, was induced to mount a big rock in the meadow. In a flowery outburst the village orator of Bohola eulogized the great athlete "Ireland and as he finished," Martin Loughnane used to relate, "the orator pointed dramatically at me and concluded, 'The great Sheridan—there he stands!' But begorrah just as he bellowed 'There he stands' my foot slipped and down I fell into the bog, fine clothes and all! When I got up again, my hat fitted me."

Charley Devens May Sign With Big League Club

Charley Devens of Harvard may turn pro at the end of the current season and sign with the Giants or Yankees.

Devens prepared for Harvard at Groton. He is the pitching star of the Crimson baseball team. He has struck out 22 batters in six games and has allowed only 20 hits.

He is noted for blinding speed, and now has control.

THRILLERS WILL BE FEATURED ON THE SCREEN THIS YEAR

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Eye and Ear:

The President is turning a deaf ear
To all the nation's frantic pleas for beer;
And so this fall, when off to vote we hie,
We'll turn to "Herbert Hoover" a blind eye.

Accommodation!

The funniest of caprices at one of the recent benefit night affairs in New York was executed by Herman Timberg . . . It was during an arrayocating of the famous opera star, Gigli . . . In the midst of Gigli's number Herman Timberg rushed out on to the stage and called down to the orchestra director, "Let this guy sing another number because my son isn't ready to go on yet!" . . . You picture the hysteria which was rampart on the stage as well as in the theater after that one!

Snooping 'Round

Cambridge's Eleanore Hinkley will have her newest play, "Dear Jane," (around the life of Jane Austin) produced by Eva La Gallienne sometime in Nov. . . . Helen Ford will be basking in the Cape's balmy atmosphere this week . . . And may do a tableau version soon of "Dear Jane" Enemy . . . Gilda Gray left hurriedly for the West Coast last Thursday . . . to begin her new picture . . . So Jack Washburn wants us to actually believe he's "just a natural born villain at heart," eh? . . . Quit your kidding, Jack—we know you know your boo-boo!!!! . . . Well, positively know, that although Dorothy Lee, cinema dear, and Vincent Waring, music maestro, are reputed to be on the verge of gold-banding it, that they will never marry . . . The flame has just burned out, that's all there is to it . . . Kiki Roberts' mother has returned to Boston . . . With her daughter's gift of the first $7500 that Kiki earned in her recent personal-appearing tour, Kiki's all set now to save for herself, which she should be able to do with her guaranteed summer's engagement about ready to begin at the Foire Bergere, Atlantic City . . . And Gotham newspaper boys still feel that Kiki is far from high hat . . . Wonder if Mrs. Roberts will get in touch with this column when she reads this line . . . 's important . . . Guy Lombardo said beautiful compliments after eyeing Angela Lippi's talented daughter's photo! . . . And is Guy a picker!

Hashovers:

Edward Anthony Brown, the "Whitey" character in Queer People," is now a member of the writing staff, so our latest from Hollywood-note says . . . Johnnie (Sharkey-plotter) Buckley's eldest daughter resembles a younger edition of Dorothy Jordan, of the talkies . . . That Newton lady's governess, who so resembles Garbo in slouch hat, flat heels and polo coat, doesn't think much of the sophisticates who stared so at her while she was recently New York trotting about . . .

Our Super Six

Six prettiest girls of the week that we've "oh-ed" and "ah-ed" over are: Marie Davies, whose Oriental number in the Wynn's Festival on Saturday was outstanding; Dorothy England, always that way but especially in her sweet, tiniest, white straw hatlet . . . Kay Corbett, gorgeous creature in white with orchids at the Cocoanut Saturday night; Radio-land's Bealiblein Viola Schmitt, whose slick haircut and lengthy earrings make you positively stare; Brookline's post-debutante, Rosamond Pierce, whose classic beauty and interpretive dancing entrances the Social Registerites and Brookline's Alice Carey, whose pastel colorings, charming gestures and smiles all seem to blend into Alice somehow.

Farewell to All This!

Saturday . . . Midnight approaches . . . The modernistic Salle Moderne is over crowded with happy, dancing people . . . Yet a lull and, for it's the Vieux Musketeer's last night to wield his baton there . . . Lou Conrad is touched when the crowd stands singing "Auf Wiedersehn" . . . Director of State Com. of Parks, Dan McGrath pleads with Lou for his megaphone . . . For a keepsake . . . Hasn't he danced there every Saturday of the season? . . . Wchat with Helen M. Coleman, with the rarest of smiles, and John F. Duffy, her adorer . . . Attention, John Buschell beaming while his pretty wife (who imitates Gracie Allen while she talks) sings out John's golfing prowess out on the Winchester links . . . (We'll have to have a caddy-chat for verification, we're afraid!) . . . While Brighton's quiet Tom Navin smiles serenely at Alice Carey especially . . . Ford's Dr. James DuVelly uses his left hand to shake our hand in greeting . . . His right still needs attention-work . . . With his very young son, Jimmy, Jr., stepping off as neat a two-step as any Broadway star with cunning little Mrs. Conrad . . . And we noticed Leo Pyne stepping about with the dainty maestro's gracious frau . . . Gladys (Television Company Owner's Daughter) Morgan, chic in a tight suit of apple green, waits in the lounge to say "Goodbye" . . . Good Luck!!! . . . Sally Rand (Warner Bros.) Spry playfully admonishes all who pass his table "not to fall down" . . . Adamo, a (Druggist's Daughter) Adamo, a picture in white satin, with Don Le Clare discoing-heaven together all the while, letting anyone guess that it's a serious matter the way they care! . . . With Auger, Fay Levinson and Bennie Goldberg, no ages to grind sheet - musically speaking this time, passing their covers and liking it—because it's such a swell sending-off of Conrad and his Musketeers for the next six weeks to the William Penn's new Urban room in Pittsburgh.

Los Angeles, May 15—You are going to see murder mysteries and murder mysteries on the screen this year. The dear public, always right, has registered a great preference for this type of picture entertainment and the studios are on a hunt for thrillers. Columbia's next contribution to this cause is "Murder Express," by Harry Adler.

Today Ben Lyon signed to play the lead. Seems no matter at what studio Ben lands, he returns sooner or later to Columbia. Barbara Weeks, the girl who had the tussle with a leopard a few weeks ago, will emote opposite him. Others in the cast are Kenneth Thomson, Dwight Frye and William V. Mong. Ben Stoloff, under contract to Bryan Foy, has been borrowed from Mr. Foy for direct.

Louella O. Parsons

Mack Will Direct

Time for those who wagered Carl Laemmle, Jr., would never dare produce "Once in a Lifetime" to collect. Junior will put the satire on Hollywood movie methods into production in two weeks, with Sylvia Fox in the part of the Ga-Ga girl, who becomes a star. Junior explains "Once in a Lifetime" is all in fun and that George Kaufman and Moss Hart wrote a comedy, not a serious story. Russell Mack will direct.

Hollywood Chatter:

Ann Harding finished her picture "Westward Passage" and immediately went to bed. Her nerves, worn out from the ordeal of the last few weeks, were completely shattered. She is resting at her home atop the hill and only a few very close friends are permitted to see her. She hasn't even been able to talk over her next story, with Elder, her first woman to attempt to fly the Atlantic, was in town Thursday. Ruth and her husband, Walter Camp, have been traveling around the world, so she took a plane and flew down here from San Francisco to see old friends. Someone remarked to Ruth that she and her husband could not have fell the hard times very much to be able to travel. "Why, it's cheaper to travel," said Ruth, "than to live in an apartment in New York." She married Walter Camp president of the old Inspiration Pictures Co., after she had had a brief and not too successful movie career.

A Line or Two

Margaret Livingston is reopening her apartment in the Colonial house. She and Paul Whiteman have been busy greeting old friends, and honestly, you have to be re-introduced to Paul to recognize him. I have never seen fat melt so completely away. If Paul and Margaret do write together the book on how to get thin it will have everybody buying it for I know of no subject that so intrigues the world.

Mary Boland Returns

The troublesome knee of Phillips Holmes is almost as good as new now. He is able to face the camera now without being conscious of limping. Today Charlie Rogers borrowed him from Paramount to play the lead in "20,000 Witnesses," the baseball story which Garrett Fort is preparing for the screen. Here is another little Paramount note.

Mary Boland is really coming to Hollywood. She will be featured in "As Husbands Go," a typical Boland comedy. Norman McLeod, who is now in Europe, will direct. He took his European trip after the Marx Brothers postponed "Horsefeathers"—and, according to Harpo, the postponement stands for at least another five weeks. Mary Boland ought to do a lot for Paramount if she is as good on the screen as she is on the stage.

Popular Juvenile

Just how scarce handsome juveniles are in Hollywood is best explained by the way Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is building Robert Young. Six months ago he was a stranger, now he is being featured in many of M-G-M's best productions, and he is not being loaned to other studios in spite of many demands for his services. Mr. Young and Lewis Stone, one of the most perennially popular character actors in the business, have been added to the cast of "Without Shame," Helen Twelvetrees' new opus.

A TASTY TRIO OF TREATS FOR THEATER FANS

Adelyn Bushnell is to play in "Phantom Cargo," a new drama due at Plymouth, May 30.

Guy Lombardo, radio band star, appearing this week in person with his Royal Canadians at the Met, as he impressed Staff Artist Charlie Schmidt. His act is a wow for a hit.

Una Merkel is featured in "Huddle," Ramon Novarro vehicle now at Loew's State.

Heeded Advice of Brisbane

John Barrymore, hero of Radio Pictures' "State's Attorney," now at RKO Keith's, is an actor because his first ambition missed fire. Barrymore wanted to be an artist and studied in Paris. He held a few jobs as a newspaper illustrator and lost them almost as fast as he got them.

On the advice of Arthur Brisbane, who fired him from one job, he turned to the stage to follow the tradition of his family.

Pops Tonight

The following all Russian program, featuring Tchaikowsky, will be presented at the Pop concert in Symphony Hall tonight, under Arthur Fiedler's direction:
Hopak from "The Fair of Sorochinsk" ..... Moussorgsky
Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ..... Glinka
Hymn to the Sun from "Le Coq d'Or" ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
"Soviet Iron Foundry" ..... Mossolov
Dance Movement, Fantasia ..... Tchaikowsky
Waltz from the Serenade for Strings ..... Tchaikowsky
"Marche Slave" ..... Tchaikowsky
Prelude in G minor ..... Rachmaninoff
Volga Bargemen's Song ..... Arranged by Jacchia
"Pasadena," Spanish dance, Glazounov

Lively Satire in Film

Lively satire holds the feature place on the screens at the Fenway, Modern and Beacon theaters this week. "It's Tough to Be Famous," topping the double first-run program, has many laughs, and is diverting through thanks to Director Al Green and the scenarist. The movie pokes fun at the world's habit of worshiping the heroes of a day, and the theme enables Green to turn his camera on a half dozen tickertape parades, harbor welcomes and other such ballyhoo.

In the cast are Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who acts satisfactorily. Mary Brian, duly attractive, Emma Dunn, David Landau and Oscar Apfel.

The associate film fairly interesting, "Discarded Lovers," with Natalie Moorhead and J. Farrell MacDonald.

Monologue Artist at the Fine Arts

Anita Plamondon, monologue artist, is appearing in a return engagement at the Fine Arts Theatre this week. Transition stars Chanelle and Raymor in "Dancing Dolls," Arthur Lloyd, "human index," Talkies "Sketches of Two Witnesses" with Wm. Collier, Jr., and "The Monster" with H. B. Warner. Always Something Doing 1 till 11.

Maybe I'm Wrong (About Hollywood)

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

Hollywood, May 16—An excited secretary rushed into an efficiency expert the other morning and said, "Quick, give your best her call the fire department, the whole building is in blazes.

"Did you put some water on it?" asked the efficiency expert.

"Sure," answered the secretary. "Well, then," replied his superior, "there's no use calling the fire department; that's all they could do."

Lombardo Is Featured in "Radio Rhapsody"

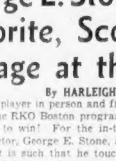
Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, who are appearing in person at the Metropolitan this week, are featured in a full hour of vaudeville and talking pictures. The outstanding film is "Night Court," a gripping story of human interest.

George E. Stone, Filmdom Favorite, Scores Hit on Stage at the Boston

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Screen player in person and film folk in shadowland—in the choice as the RKO Boston program offers it this week, we pick the former to win! For the in-the-flesh entertainment brings that able actor, George E. Stone, a chap of whom it can be said that his art is such that he touches nothing that he does not adorn. To interpret that expression from Dr. Sam Johnson, let us say that Stone is some actor.

Stone appears in a sketch which is of real merit, due chiefly to himself. Fans will recall him for the grand job he did in "Cimarron" wherein he was the Jewish peddler. In roles big or little he has shone a mere on the silver sheet. He is just as fine, or even better, on stage. He is a topnotcher on his trionics among the screen personages who have made personal appearances hereabouts. Other good acts on the new bill are Ann Greenway, excellent singer capably aided by Cy Miller; Jack Usher, comedy skit; Glad Rags Dance Revue, and Four Freshmen, athletic feats.



Myrna Loy

If Stone shows the acting art of the cinema expertly, "Vanity Fair," featured on the Boston's film fare, reveals a range downward to the mediocre. One would gladly record it as a near-miss which it isn't, and yet it will richly entertain readers and lovers of Thackeray. The well-known novel it is, in the main, based and built up. The modern twists are of doubtful value; the story would probably have been better off if no changes had been made.

In a way this is a starring vehicle for Myrna Loy, a lass whom we admire for her serious attention to the job in hand, whatever the role may be. She is the Becky Sharpe, that mother of all the gold diggers of fiction; Miss Loy is a most alluring siren.

"Night Court" Feature Film at the Bowdoin

At the Bowdoin Square is featured a bill of vaudeville and talking pictures. The outstanding film is "Night Court," a gripping story of human interest and her acting is better than that of most of the cast. The best performer is Conway Tearle, who has the knack of vitalizing the story when he is around; and when he goes, it loses a great deal.

"It seems to me it's about time the American people would use a little common sense," said Senator Stowell. "DO YOU OR DO YOU NOT WANT A NUDIST COLONY?"—FRISBY.

Exactly at 9:10 a. m. today Congressman Frisby will press a button that will ring a bell that will open a door that will start his great nationwide house-to-house canvass to determine whether or not the American people want him to organize a nudist colony. Mr. Frisby's statement of the hopes and fears follows:

"America, I love you. If I am to start a nudist colony I will organize it in a modest way, and then fight the proposition. I will leave nothing undone to expose the whole dangerous program which threatens our institutions.

"If Americans want to be forward looking, and adopt new and progressive ideals, who could better lead the movement than a tried and true statesman and Congressman-at-large who has the confidence of rich and poor, tall and short, one and all, pro and con. I will await your decision in a dignified way. Call me up some time."

Gossip About People You Know

CONVENTION SINGER

Rose Zeballos, of Boston, selected to sing the Star Spangled Banner at the opening of the Democratic National convention in Chicago in June, is probably the best known singer in political circles in Massachusetts. Her voice has been heard at every big Democratic get-together in recent years. Thousands of people who attended the Roosevelt open forum in the last primary campaign heard her frequently.

TOO MANY DOGS

Supt. of Buildings Fred H. Kimball is arriving at the conclusion that if he wants any grass to grow on the plot of ground along the State House on the Mt. Vernon side, he will have to put up a wire mesh fence to supplement the present railings. This spot has become a favorite place for Beacon Hill residents to exercise their dogs on.

CURLEY HONOR GUEST

Mayor Curley has been guest of honor and will present the James M. Curley, Jr., prize to Dr. Mary Mooney, Belle Isle ranger of scenic Daniel J. Cronin Court, at the 53rd annual session of Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters at Swampscott, May 24. The prize is awarded the member of the order securing the largest number of members during the 12 months period prior to the annual meeting. Dr. Beatty secured 401 members.

BANQUET FOR GLYNN

Friends of Chairman Theodore A. Glynn, of the municipal street commission, will tender him a banquet, as observance of his recent appointment to that position by Mayor Curley, in Hotel Copley-Plaza on June 14.

PFEIFFER COMPLAINS

Rep. Louis Pfeiffer of Bedford, can't understand why he does not get a chance to preside over the House once in a while. After Speaker Saltonstall designated Rep. Horace Cahill of Braintree, as temporary presiding officer, Pfeiffer let the Speaker know how he felt about such honors.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate] No. 7 [Federal sales tax and excise taxes to replace the income tax, which has degenerated into a racket.

Bay State for Sales Tax

Senator Coolidge Hears From Home

Senator Marcus A. Coolidge says, in a statement issued at Washington, that the correspondence he receives from his constituents here in Massachusetts has convinced him that the people are very largely in favor of the manufacturers' sales tax.

There is absolutely no doubt about it.

We can appreciate the dilemma of men in public life. They must be guided largely by public sentiment because they are, in the last analysis, the servants of the public in whom that sentiment exists.

That sentiment is not alway possible to gauge.

In the case of the sales tax, there has been a steady conversion of public sentiment to it which is now overwhelming in its proportions.

The people have come to regard it as the most logical and just of taxes and the one which can be paid, as the gasoline tax is paid in Massachusetts, with the least inconvenience and the least burden.

We can be glad that both Senators Walsh and Coolidge recognize the merit and justice of the sales tax as well as the public sentiment for it. They have refused to align themselves with the jackass rabbits and the cheap demagogues who have made a nuisance of themselves with their nuisance taxes.

A Mecca for Scientists

A correspondent inquires if there was any good reason why the 100th anniversary of the invention of the telegraph by Samuel F. B. Morse should have been celebrated here in Boston.

Yes: the very good reason that Samuel Morse was born, reared and educated in Boston. His birthplace was on Main Street, Charlestown, near the approach to Thompson Square.

Morse's invention of the telegraph was his greatest contribution to human society, but he was a man of parts. He was the first sculptor from America whose talents were accepted by the ancient salons of Europe. He was the first photographer in America; he delivered the first course of lectures in America on fine arts and he organized the National Academy of the Arts of Design, at New York.

From Franklin to Morse to Agassiz, Boston has been the mecca of great scientists of the New World. Some day, somebody among us will have intelligence enough and civic pride enough to organize a Boston Scientific Celebration in which Boston will secure international recognition of her vast contribution to the arts and sciences made by her great sons past and present.

Solons Did Their Duty

More power to the members of the House of Representatives, who overwhelmingly rejected the scheme to establish a pre-primary convention system in Massachusetts.

They saw the scheme for just what it was—the camel poking its nose under the tent of popular elections and popular government.

Once in, what the camel of reaction would have done to popular elections would have been nothing less than a shame.

Well, it's stopped for the present at least.

Of course, the authors of this scheme have the right to complete their initiative petition and present the scheme to the voters for final decision.

Let them do it. The House rejected it by a majority of 138 to 62. Once the people get their hands onto it they will kill it by a popular verdict that will make that majority look insignificant. The public never will stand for any return of the packed, boss-controlled convention system of nominating candidates for public offices.

Our Peaceful Italians

Our good neighbor, the Italian News, asks us to give circulation to the recent speech of Judge Joseph T. Zottoli of the Municipal Court.

Judge Zottoli "attacked the myth" that our people of Italian origin are largely responsible for the crime wave. In refutation, he said:

"Of the 50,000 men, women, boys and girls arrested for all offenses in Boston last year, only 500 were Italians.

"Of the 19,000 arrested for drunkenness, only 43 were Italians, and not one of the 43 was a woman."

Judge Zottoli made the point that while there are 200,000 residents of Italian origin in Boston, comprising 25 per cent of the population, they constituted only one per cent of those arrested for all offenses and less than a quarter of one per cent of those arrested for drunkenness.

On this basis, Judge Zottoli concluded:

"We of Italian birth or extraction are the most orderly race of any in the city. We have every reason to feel proud."

Solace for Farmers

The masticating of a hay or barley stalk has been a custom amongst American farmers since time out of mind. The habit is usually acquired in infancy. And the idea seems to prevail—helped, perhaps, by the cartoonists—that chewing upon a straw assists the mental processes of all engaged in pastoral tasks.

Now comes Dr. Cameron, of the University of Michigan, who says it is all wrong. To chew herbage is all right for cattle, but in farmers, he says, it causes lumpy jaw. This may add to the apprehensions of the farmer. How much he masticates in a year it would be difficult to tell. The Department of Agriculture has no statistics on this point. Perhaps a couple of thousand bales.

However, stalk-chewing addicts needn't dash off to see about making their wills. Dr. Cameron admits that since 1885 only 55 cases of the malady have been reported. It looks as if farmers have become as immune to the effects of chewing corn stalks as they are to the effects of drinking corn licker.

New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, May 16—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early up and a note from Gertrude Atherton she is not the furiously vital lady recently chronicled here but rather the laziest in the world. But had I written as many books and been so many places I would think myself a human dynamo.

So with my wife in a charabanc to the Claremont for a waffle breakfast and walked along Riverside Drive gazing beyond the parapet. And a man hallooed from a bus top "Hi there, Gallipolis!" Thence to my typewriter and later to sit awhile with the limner, George McManus.

To dinner with the William Seimans and the Orson Munns, George Gershwin, the Paul Whitemans, the Rube Goldbergs and Harold Ross there. And afterward Gershwin played a folio of tunes, the willings genius I know. Afterward all fell to the number game save Seaman and I who made records of radio broadcasts.

Harlan Dixon, the dancer, is one of the bookiest of the piff-awmers. Wherever he goes—to the club, restaurant, etc.—he is always carrying a volume under his arm. He has read most of the classics and keeps pace with the modern output. Three rooms in his rambling farmhouse near Poughkeepsie are lined with book shelves.

Over the telephone just now a soft feminine voice inquires why Indians are never bald. I am too concerned with my own receding hair line at the moment to do any research work in her behalf. Anyway her interruption diverted me from an idea for a paragraph I thought was a dandy. It's gone now.

A feverish period of city editing a middle west newspaper in a circle of constantly ringing telephones has given me a distaste for the telephone that is a mania. I resort to every subterfuge to avoid it, and when I do answer, this sort of thing invariably happens.

O, yes, the elusive paragraph concerned a comedy knockabout duo billed as Mitchell and Durant. They smack each other around in a whirlwind of falls that shakes the rafters and heaps them perspiring and prostrate at the climax. After a shower and a rubdown, which leaves them five pounds lighter, they frequently visit a gymnasium to play hand ball. And in reading this over it occurs to me the telephone didn't interrupt a thing.

Crooners, matinee idols and current run-of-the-mine Romeos took a back seat for the newest pulse pumper—John Weissmuller. Heretofore he decorated beaches in aquatic antics at snootier spas. As a swimming champion his admirers were limited, but stardom in a movie resulted in the spontaneous flowering of another Great Lover. His personal appearance in a skimpy leopard skin brought sighing ladies to front pews and mash notes daily that would trip a whippet. Weissmuller is husband to perky Bobbe—not Bobbie—Arnst, a nimble-toed lady who floated like a puff ball in and out of revues and night clubs and is somewhat of a charmer herself, should anyone pull up to inquire.

As a pronounced pessimist I never behold the Romeos without thinking of the rocks ahead. There is the quick descent of John Gilbert. And, in dreamy fugue, Vallee, Crosby and Columbo, now in the corona of eclipse. The list is endless.

* * *

I hasten to add such misgivings are without rancor. The columnar clan has never developed a Lancelot. From the massive Heywood Broun to the fly-weight Louis Sobol there isn't anything mildly suggesting a heart-wrecker. Other guilds more or less in the public eye have their Big Moments. Columnists do not rate split seconds.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

His Modern Daughter

HERE'S ANOTHER of those picture-puzzles of modern American life. What do you make of it?

He's forty-eight; a moderately successful business man; owns a comfortable, eight-room house in the city; one maid, washing done out; has a pretty, amiable wife and two youngsters, a boy of twenty and a girl of eighteen.

Elsie Robinson girl—

Like most fathers, he seemed to lose track of his girl during these last years. When she was a baby, he couldn't see enough of her. Then, when she reached the gangly, uninteresting stage, he left her to her mother; was fond of her, of course, but didn't keep any particular check on her.

Lately she has come back into the picture again, not altogether pleasantly. She has been requiring what seems to him to be an unreasonable amount of money; coming home at troubling hours; filling the house with queer people. The other day, when he remonstrated, there was a scene. It jolted the father. He began to take stock of her; discovered many surprising things.

Discovered, first, that he'd lost his baby. Instead, here was this pretty, pert, amazingly sophisticated young lady, leading a life of her own under his roof—a life that seemed a million years removed from his own early training or personal notions of proper feminine conduct.

And the kind of people she was running around with—they matched the dresses. Coming in and going out at all hours with a bunch of rowdies, smelling of liquor! Indignantly he asked his wife what she meant by letting the girl carry on this way?

Smiling, she assured him that Alice wasn't carrying on. All the girls acted like that nowadays; dressed like that. They weren't young rowdies, either. They were really nice young people. Yes, perhaps they did drink a little; and the girls did smoke; but young people did those things nowadays. As for sewing, no one did it anymore.

Then what did the girl do? That, after all, was the main point. He didn't mind spending money on her; was even willing to put up with a lot of the things he didn't understand. BUT—WHAT DID SHE DO?

Why, not anything in particular, his wife said with a rather condescending smile. Alice hadn't wanted to go to college.

He didn't answer. He was thinking. What had he expected? A girl like his own sister? A wife like his own mother? But what sort of a wife would this spoiled, extravagant, undisciplined girl make? How much would she save and sacrifice for a home—she, whose every whim was gratified, who gave no accounting, assumed no responsibility? How much would she sympathize with a husband's hard work and worry? How long would she be loyal?

WHAT WAS SHE WORTH, AS A HUMAN BEING—THIS DAUGHTER OF HIS?

WAS SHE ACTUALLY ANYTHING BUT A TRAMP?

WEREN'T ALL THESE PAMPERED, MODERN DAUGHTERS, WITH THEIR RESTLESSNESS, THEIR LAWLESSNESS AND LACK OF VALUES, AS MUCH A MENACE TO SOCIETY AS ANY STREET LOAFER?

Aghast, he asked himself those questions—and hasn't answered them yet.

What is YOUR answer?

Just Folks

Growing Up

Since the mother's been away
Little Janet's had her chair
At the table day by day
And has played the lady there.
With a roguish touch of grace
And a manner quaint to see,
With a smile upon her face
She has ruled it over me.

For a full long week she's played
Being Mrs. Nellie Guest,
Ruling master, cook and maid
As the mother at her best.
With a charming little frown
When I reached for chocolate cake,
I was told to put it down,
Since it causes stomach ache.

Little Janet, only nine,
Has been mistress of us all.
She received with manners fine
Every guest who came to call.
And I've learned a lovely fact
In the week which now has flown,
Just how much in every act
Like her mother she has grown.

Vital Things in Washington

By Claude G. Bowers

WHEN PRESIDENT HOOVER summoned Congress to action on the tariff almost immediately after taking office he said in his message that a very limited revision only was justified: and then the "locust swarm of lobbyists" descended on the capital, and the pulling and the hauling, and the log-rolling that disgraces the American legislative scene when tariffs are involved, began.

Soon it was evident that the "human greed," which has temporarily ruined this country, would have its way. The Democrats opposed the bill on the ground that it would ruin our foreign trade; and this would destroy prosperity. The economists agreed. They appealed to the President—a thousand of them—to veto the stupid measure which might well have been labeled, "An act to assure the economic isolation of the country." Business men and bankers joined in the protest. Two-thirds of the press, regardless of politics, opposed it.

And then one of the "locust swarm of lobbyists," temporarily a member of the Senate, named Joe Grundy, rose indignantly to serve notice that he had raised a million dollars among those who support the "locust swarm of lobbyists" for the election of Herbert Hoover; and he implied that having bought something these delectable patriots had a right to demand the delivery of the goods. And Mr. Hoover took his stand with "the locust swarm of lobbyists" and used the Presidential whip, and managed to get the monstrous measure through the Senate by a bare margin of two votes. And that, too, in a Senate largely Republican.

Markets Shut in Our Faces

Then, as the Democrats had warned, and the economists had foreseen, the nations that had been our best customers began to shut their markets in our faces through retaliatory legislation. In the last two years our international trade has been reduced 53.2 per cent. Canada shut the door in our face. Mexico took steps to shut out our wheat and flour. Argentina entered into reciprocal relations, not with us, but with England on raw material and manufactures. France denied us access to her markets. Spain made it impossible to sell an American automobile in that country. Switzerland, which had always bought far more from us than we ever bought from her, finding we had idiotically fixed rates making it almost impossible for her to sell anything at all, is now buying anywhere she can except from the United States. Great Britain has retaliated with a vengeance.

And the result is the destruction of the foreign trade without which this country cannot prosper. Merchants, financiers, economists, publicists are all agreed on that.

Herbert Hoover Vetoed the Bill

And the campaign of 1930, resulting in the repudiation of Mr. Grundy and Mr. Hoover and "the locust swarm of lobbyists," was fought out on the Grundy Act. The Democratic House, realizing that the damage had been done in other countries by retaliatory legislation and that reductions in the tariff here without similar reductions in other nations would be impossible, passed a bill which asked the President to enter into diplomatic negotiations and to invite an international conference to bring about such reciprocal agreements as would make possible the restoration of foreign trade.

That is what the economists say must be done.

And what business men and many manufacturers say must be done.

And what the bankers who have foreign loans say must be done.

And what common sense declares must be done.

And Herbert Hoover has vetoed the bill; and taken his stand for that economic isolation which has ruined our foreign trade, and is driving American capital to build factories in foreign countries where foreign working men are employed with American money that is spent with foreign merchants.

Now we shall know just how much business men think of their business and bankers think of their President.

But one thing stands out like a lighthouse — Mr. Grundy ought now to raise another million dollars to assure us "Four Years More of Hoover."

The Issue Passes to the People

Cordell Hull of the Senate has characterized the veto perfectly in the Senate:

"The veto of the Democratic tariff program reveals complete subserviency to the selfish, blind and dumb forces of an extreme economic isolation. . . . This mad policy of extremism was the greatest single cause of the panic, and is the greatest single impediment to sound business recovery."

The issue now passes to the people, who are the victims, who must take their choice between economic recovery and the "locust swarm of lobbyists" with whom the administration has again aligned itself.

The Only Possible War

Meanwhile with most of us loaded down with letters of appeal for funds from charity organizations to prevent starvation, the Democrats have taken their stand for a Prosperity Loan to put men to work. Senator Robinson, Democrat leader, has presented a plan for a $2,000,000,000 loan to create work. We would have had it larger, but this is a recognition of the necessity and will go a long way. As far as we can see, it is the only possible way. Just now or for at least a year, to get the jobless back on a payroll and give them or the purchasing class for the benefit of the hard-hit merchants.

It is the most conservative measure or relief that has yet been offered for consideration to Congress; government or organized society what becomes of the 8,000,000 breadwinners denied their inalienable right to work. How many of the women and children included in the 40,000,000 involved in the unemployment of the breadwinners, actually starve in a land of plenty.

It is the only measure that is thought will be used as advanced to states and municipalities where unemployment is increasing and the local governmental units have exhausted their resources doing the work of the nation, and charity organizations are unable to scratch the surface of necessity.

We have before us an appeal from the Salvation Army from which we quote:

"To do nothing more than maintain all present relief activities at their present levels from April 1 to Oct. 1 will require approximately $30,000,000. For this purpose there was available on May 1 less than $7,000,000.

"Figures such as these can tell but one story—the story of a potential community tragedy of appalling proportions.

"The hunger of children cannot be satisfied with statistical charts. The tears of anguished mothers cannot be dried with economic theories. Fathers made desperate by the suffering of their helpless dependents cannot be controlled by sermons on patience. Today the call is for action."

And action from the nation's government—which must abandon its position at the market ticker tape long enough to see the human misery about it.

Senator Watson, speaking for the administration, says he is "unalterably opposed" to a prosperity loan for the employment of the jobless. Congress must vote the loan and let the President do what he will.
